Defense Counsel Asks Judge
Odum Disqualify Himself
as Prejudiced in Case

DENIES MOTION
Bastrop, La., Nov. 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Judge Fred M. Odum today overruled the motion of the defense in the Morehouse misadventure trial that he refuse or disqualify himself. The defense gave notice that it would appeal to the supreme court. The defense had charged that the court was biased and prejudiced.

Bastrop, La., Nov. 8.—Judge Fred M. Odum today fined Capt. J. E. Skidmore, exalted cyclops of the Morehouse Ku Klux Klan, W. J. McIntosh, Benton Pratt and Marvin Pickett $10 and costs. They were convicted Monday of carrying firearms on the premises of another.

Bastrop, La., Nov. 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Judge Fred M. Odum, presiding at the trial of the Morehouse Paris misadventure cases growing out of masked band activities last year which culminated in the kidnapping and alleged murder of Matt Daniel and T. F. Richards of New Rouge on August 24, 1922, was to rule today on the motion of defense counsel requesting that he refuse or disqualify himself on the ground that he is biased and prejudiced against the defendants.

The motion was presented to the court in a lengthy statement after T. Jess Burnett, former parish deputy sheriff, had been adjudged guilty by the judge of assault with a dangerous weapon in connection with the holdup on August 37, 1922, of Harry Neelie, a garage worker, by two unmasked men whom Neelie swore he recognized as Burnett and Harley Rogers.

Judge Odum announced the trial would be interrupted no matter what his decision was and he postponed all the remaining cases indefinitely, discharged all witnesses and dismissed the defendants until further notice. In the opinion of District Attorney David G. Garrett it will be three weeks at least before it will be possible to resume the trial and other court attaches believed it probably would be six weeks.

It was stated by defense counsel if Judge Odum overrules the motion for recusal an appeal would be taken to the state supreme court. The defense also challenged the right of the court to rule on the motion and contended that Judge Odum must call on another judge to act for him. Should the decision be favorable to Judge Odum if this course is followed.

Exceptions were taken by defense counsel to remarks made by the court in announcing his decision in the Burnett case. Burnett has testified that he knew nothing of the Neelie hold-up and numerous witnesses on the stand swore Burnett was at work on the day of the Neelie holdup.

WATER PLANT QUESTION UP HERE TONIGHT

Judge Flannery, Head of Company, Arrives From St.
Paul to Meet Commission

SALE MATTER IS UP

Judge George P. Flannery of St. Paul, president of the Bismarck Water Supply Company, Pierce Butler, St. Paul, attorney, and R. C. Flannery of Minneapolis arrived here at noon to meet the members of the Bismarck city commission on the waterworks question.

No comments were forthcoming in advance of the meeting between the parties. The city commission had adjourned Monday night until 3 o'clock this afternoon, but the meeting was further postponed and it was expected that Judge Flannery would meet the commission tonight. During the afternoon the water company representatives discussed various phases of the business, and Judge Flannery met a number of old friends.

The city commission and Mr. Flannery had agreed last summer that the city would purchase the plant of the Bismarck Water Supply Company for $265,000, taking possession on September 9, but the deal was not consummated owing to delays in completion of arrangements with financial houses. Both parties, it is understood, desire to reach an agreement, but there may be a number of questions which have arisen since the first agreement was made that will have to be settled.

Washington, Nov. 8.—The scope of the senate inquiry into the Veterans Bureau probably will be broadened as a result of statements made to the investigating committee yesterday by its counsel that certain employees of the bureau have sought to hinder in every way the obtaining of records and papers for the inquiry and prosecution.

R. E. Routsong, in charge of the statistical division who was assigned by Director Frank Hines to assist committee counsel, was named as one of the employees and the committee asked that it be furnished a list of others. Specifically Routsong was charged with withholding papers relating to payments to Matthew O'Brien, a San Francisco architect, for unused plans for a hospital at Livermore California. The committee was in recess today until next Monday.

"WETS" VICTORS IN SCOTLAND

London, Nov. 8.—Judging from the result already compiled in the local option vote taken in 43 towns in Scotland this week, the liquor dealers and their customers have every cause for satisfaction. In all except a few places the "wets" not only defeated the dry-totalers but increased the victory they scored in the last contest three years ago.

The utmost efforts of the pro-liquor element, however, failed to shake the resolution of the residents of Milngavie, Kirkintilloch and Kilsyth, who reaffirmed their faith in temperance. On the other hand a small town in Perthshire fell from grace and elected to revert to the column of the "wets" after three years of experience with prohibition.

STILL HOPE TO RECONCILE U.S. FRENCH VIEWS

Conversations Between Secretary Hughes and Amba-

GET EXPLANATION

French Viewpoint Is Laid Before Washington Officials in New Meeting

Washington, Nov. 8.—Beyond the fact that direct conversations between Washington and Paris governments are continuing there was no indication as to what progress was being made to clear the way on the scope of the proposed expert inquiry into reparations.

A detailed explanation of the French position has been laid before officials here. After receiving this in a half-hour conference with Ambassador Jusserand late yesterday Secretary Hughes avoided any comment whatever on the outlook while the French ambassador confined himself to the statement that the conversations were continued, adding that "when there is a definite result it will be brought to your notice."

The Secretary went directly from the conference to the White House to report developments to President Coolidge.

The fact that the exchange of viewpoints here with the French government continues is accepted in some quarters as indicating at least that hope is still retained for reconciling the American and French positions and thus clearing the way for an understanding among the allies in extending an invitation for American cooperation in the proposed inquiry. This was linked with press reports of increased hope in Paris of an ultimate agreement among the allies as also supplying an optimistic glimpse.

WALTON FAILS IN APPEAL TO FEDERAL COURT

Judge Holds He Lacks Jurisdiction and Governor Must Go on Trial

ENTERS HIS PLEA

Oklahoma City, Nov. 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Governor J. C. Walton went to trial at 1:30 p. m. today before the senate to answer 22 impeachment charges all involving willful neglect of duty, moral turpitude and misuse of office.

Oklahoma City, Nov. 8.—Denied federal intervention on which he attempted to halt impeachment proceedings Governor J. C. Walton will go to trial before the senate court of impeachment on 22 charges of official misconduct.

The Governor is determined to make another bid for government mediation on the ground that he will not be given a fair trial before the state legislature conspired beforehand with the Ku Klux Klan to remove him from office but his opponent in the action considered it unlikely that it will meet with any more successes than the first attempt. On this assumption it was predicted that the impeachment hearing will be long-drawn out, possibly lasting a month or more, since the Governor's lawyers say they will insist the court hear evidence on all the charges before voting on the verdict.

Conviction on one of the impeachment articles would automatically remove him from office.

U. S. District Judge Cottrell in federal court at Lawton late yesterday refused to grant the Governor's application for an injunction to restrain the legislature from proceeding with the trial, holding the court had no jurisdiction in the case. The court, however, left the way open for another ruling on the petition when it granted the Governor a new hearing at a date yet to be set. An appeal to the U. S. supreme court will be taken if the action is finally denied, the executive's counsel indicated.

While the proceedings were being held at Lawton, the Governor appeared here through his counsel, and entered a plea of not guilty, at the same time making a sweeping denial of all impeachment charges.

(By the Associated Press.)

New York, Nov. 8.—Forecasting for 1924 another period of such record-breaking trade as the United States has experienced in the year just passing two national organizations of executives of the foremost railroads today adopted an ambitious program of financial and physical expansion for the next 12 months. The program, drawn by the board of directors of the American Railway association, representing 240 roads, was approved by the full membership and later by heads of the 194 class one roads which comprise the association of railway executives.

It contemplates the aggregate expenditure, exclusive of what appropriations may be contained in the 1924 budget of $249,804,000 already authorized for new locomotives, cars and equipment. This would bring total capital expenditures of class one roads since 1922 to $1,732,516,000, a high precedent in the history of American transportation for any similar period.

Although the program did not specify the total capital expenditures for 1924 that might be written in the budgets of individual roads it expressed complete satisfaction with results of the billion and a half dollar plan of expansion embarked on last spring.

OPERATORS TO GET HEARING ON QUESTION

Railroad Commission Suspends Rates For 120 Days
Pending Hearing in Matter

PLOT IS CHARGED

J. L. Sullivan, Attorney For Operators, Sees Combine
With Pennsylvanians

"The proposed 40 to 60 percent increase in the lignite coal freight rates in North Dakota would absolutely throttle the infant coal mining industry in this state," said Attorney John F. Sullivan of Mandan counsel for the North Dakota Lignite Coal Operators Association when informed that petitions were filed with the railroad commission by railroads for such an increase.

"I despise a muckraker, but on the face of this petition I can see nothing else than a gigantic combine between the railroads and the coal operators of Pennsylvania and the east to throttle the lignite industry in North Dakota."

"The main thing holding down coal mining in this state today is high freight rates. Twice during the war freight rates affecting lignite coal were raised, 30 percent at one time and 25 percent at another time. There has been a slight decrease since."

Last summer the eastern operators invaded North Dakota with a price on eastern screenings at a price so low that larger users were supplied with screenings at a price strongly indicating it was below the cost of production and freight. It was so close that practically all the largest consumers of screenings are burning Pennsylvania and eastern screenings obtained under these contracts.

Are Underbid

"And today, declared Mr. Sullivan, the screenings from the coal mines in western North Dakota are being dumped on the ground as waste material in spite of the fact that they are as fine fuel as found any place. When anyone stops to consider that in North Dakota we have an exceptionally high grade of fuel—the front door of our trade cities, Minneapolis and St. Paul, and yet the Pennsylvania soft coal operator can mine his coal, load it into cars, ship it to Buffalo by rail, ship by water to Duluth, unload from ships and reload on cars and ship to Minneapolis and St. Paul and sell there at a price so low that our western North Dakota products can't compete with it it would seem it is high time the trade clubs of this mid-west section took an active interest in the coal rate matter. There is no justification for the rate increase."

Be indicated that what action the coal operators might take must be decided by the board of directors but declared that action certainly would be started to fight to the last ditch any increase in North Dakota rates.

Increases in lignite coal rates proposed on both intra-state and interstate business by the railroads operating in North Dakota will be vigorously fought by lignite operators of North Dakota, it is expected here. The intra-state tariffs proposed by the railroads, effective December 6, were ordered suspended for 120 days by the state railroad commission pending an investigation and hearing, the date of which will be set later.

W. P. Macomber of Wilton, president of the Washburn Lignite Coal Company, informed of the filing of the petition, declared that increases would be opposed as long as the rates are high enough to satisfy the mine owners.

"The lignite rates are high enough now," he said. "If the coal companies were making one-half as much as the railroads they would be satisfied. There isn't a lignite mine in the state making a dollar today."

Mr. Macomber said an increase would especially handicap the industry since it is now seeking to develop a market a longer distance from the mines than ever before.

The proposed increases, as figured by the railroad commission staff, would mean an increase on one line hauls and smaller increases on two and three line hauls. A general increase is sought in whatever manner lignite is moved.

The railroads, in their petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission a copy of which was delivered to the state commission, cited a former decision of the United States Supreme Court in which lignite rates existing many years ago were held to be confiscatory. In their petition on state rates the carriers point to the Holmes and Halliwell case which involved bituminous coal rates in the Northwest.

The railroad commission's suspension of the proposed increase for 120 days, acted according to the usual practice. In announcing the suspension the commission as it took the action on the ground that the comparison to the Holmes and Halliwell decision was not justified because of the difference in heating value of the two commodities. And because the proposed rates would be unjust and unreasonable, and prejudicial to the shippers and people of the state. A resolution asking the

WON'T HEAR RAIL CASE

Washington, Nov. 8.—The Interstate Commerce commission has refused to undertake an investigation into the general level of railroad rates. Identical letters, containing notice of the decision were addressed yesterday to various organizations of shippers and producers.

GIRL LOST IN SNOW.

Bellevue, N. D., Nov. 8.—Lost in driving snow and confused in the darkness as she guided her cow pony in search of cattle, an 8-year-old orphan girl, named Livenonick, was forced to spend the night in a deserted shack which she chanced to find. She put her horse in an old shed and carrying straw for a bed for herself, she spent the night in cold and hunger.

In the morning she found her way to the home of Mrs. Gus Anderson, with whom she lives.

VETS' BUREAU INQUIRY MAY BE BROADENED

Charged That Employees Seek to Hinder Investigation in Every Possible Way

Washington, Nov. 8.—The scope of the senate inquiry into the Veterans Bureau probably will be broadened as a result of statements made to the investigating committee yesterday by its counsel that certain employees of the bureau has sought to hinder in every way the obtaining of records and papers for the inquiry and prosecution.

R. E. Routsong, in charge of the statistical division who was assigned by Director Frank Hines to assist committee counsel, was named as one of the employees and the committee asked that it be furnished a list of others. Specifically Routsong was charged with withholding papers relating to payments to Matthew O'Brien, a San Francisco architect, for unused plans for a hospital at Livermore, California. The committee was in recess today until next Monday.

"WETS" VICTORS IN SCOTLAND

London, Nov. 8.—Judging from the result already compiled in the local option vote taken in 43 towns in Scotland this week the liquor dealers and their customers have every cause for satisfaction. In all except a few places the "wets" not only defeated the tee-totalists but increased the victory they scored in the last contest three years ago.

The utmost efforts of the pro-liquor element, however, failed to shake the resolution of the residents of Milngavie, Kirkintilloch and Kilsyth, who reaffirmed their faith in temperance. On the other hand a small town in Perthshire fell from grace and elected to revert to the column of the "wets" after three years of experience with prohibition.

STILL HOPE TO RECONCILE U.S. FRENCH VIEWS

GET EXPLANATION

French Viewpoint Is Laid Before Washington Officials in New Meeting

Washington, Nov. 8.—Beyond the fact that direct conversations between Washington and Paris governments are continuing there was no indication as to what progress was being made to clear the way on the scope of the proposed expert inquiry into reparations.

A detailed explanation of the French position has been laid before officials here. After receiving this in a half-hour conference with Ambassador Jusserand late yesterday Secretary Hughes avoided any comment whatever on the outlook while the French ambassador confined himself to the statement that the conversations were continued, adding that "when there is a definite result it will be brought to your notice."

The Secretary went directly from the conference to the White House to report developments to President Coolidge.

The fact that the exchange of viewpoints here with the French government continues is accepted in some quarters as indicating at least that hope is still retained for reconciling the American and French positions and thus clearing the way for an understanding among the allies in extending an invitation for American cooperation in the proposed inquiry. This was linked with press reports of increased hope in Paris of an ultimate agreement among the allies as also supplying an optimistic insight.

WALTON FAILS IN APPEAL TO FEDERAL COURT

Judge Holds He Lacks Jurisdiction and Governor Must Go on Trial

ENTERS HIS PLEA

Oklahoma City, Nov. 8.—(By the Associated Press.)—Governor J. C. Walton went to trial at 1:30 p. m. today before the senate to answer 22 impeachment charges all involving what is alleged to be duty, moral turpitude and misuse of office.

Oklahoma City, Nov. 8.—Denied federal intervention by which he attempted to halt impeachment proceedings Governor J. C. Walton will go to trial before the senate court of impeachment on 22 charges of official misconduct.

The Governor is determined to make another bid for government mediation on the ground that he will not be given a fair trial before the state legislature conspired beforehand with the Ku Klux Klan to remove him from office but his opponent in the action considered it unlikely that it will meet with any more success.

Conviction on one of the impeachment articles would automatically remove him from office.

U. S. District Judge Cotterell in federal court at Lawton late yesterday refused to grant the Governor's application for an injunction to restrain the legislature from proceeding with the trial, holding the court had no jurisdiction in the case. The court, however, left the way open for another ruling on the petition when it grants the Governor a new hearing at a date yet to be set. An appeal to the U. S. supreme court will be taken if the action is finally denied, the executive's counsel indicated.

While the proceedings were being held at Lawton, the Governor appeared here through his counsel and entered a plea of not guilty at the same time making a sweeping denial of all impeachment charges.

RAILROADS PREDICT BIG '24 BUSINESS

Executives Approve Billion and a Half Dollar Expansion Program for Year

BREAKS ALL RECORDS

New Locomotives, Cars and Equipment to be Bought By the Railroads

(By the Associated Press.)

New York, Nov. 8.—Forecasting for 1924 another period of such record-breaking trade traffic as the United States has experienced in the year just passing two national organizations of executives of the foremost railroads today adopted an ambitious program of financial and physical expansion for the next 12 months.

The program drawn by the board of directors of the American Railway association, representing 240 roads, was approved by the full membership and later by heads of the 194 class one roads which comprise the association of railway executives.

It contemplates the aggregate expenditure, exclusive of what appropriations may be contained in the 1924 budget of $243,804,000 already authorized for new locomotives, cars and equipment. This would bring total capital expenditures of class one roads since 1922 to $1,732,516,000, a high precedent in the history of American transportation for any similar period.

Although the program did not specify the total capital expenditures for 1924 that might be written in the budgets of individual roads it expressed complete satisfaction with results of the billion and a half dollar plan of expansion embarked on last spring.

OPERATORS TO GET HEARING ON QUESTION

Railroad Commission Suspends Rates For 120 Days Pending Hearing in Matter

PLOT IS CHARGED

J. L. Sullivan, Attorney For Operators, Sees Combine With Pennsylvanians

"The proposed 40 to 60 percent increase in the lignite coal freight rates in North Dakota would absolutely throttle the infant coal mining industry in this state," said Attorney John F. Sullivan of Mandan counsel for the North Dakota Lignite Coal Operators Association when informed that petitions were filed with the railroad commission by railroads for such an increase.

"I despise a muckraker, but on the face of this petition I can see nothing else than a gigantic combine between the railroads and the coal operators of Pennsylvania and the east to throttle the lignite industry in North Dakota."

"The main thing holding down coal mining in this state today is high freight rates. Twice during the war freight rates affecting lignite coal were raised, 30 percent at one time and 25 percent at another time. There has been a slight decrease since."

Last summer the eastern operators invaded North Dakota with a price on eastern screenings at a price so low that larger users were supplied with screenings at a price strongly indicating it was below the cost of production and freight. It was so close that practically all the largest consumers of screenings at the time Pennsylvania and eastern screenings obtained under these contracts.

Are Underbid

"And today, declared Mr. Sullivan, the screenings from the coal mines in western North Dakota are being dumped on the ground as waste material in spite of the fact that they are as fine fuel as found any place."

When anyone stops to consider that in North Dakota we have an exceptionally high grade of fuel at the front door of our trade cities, Minneapolis and St. Paul, and yet the Pennsylvania soft coal operator can mine his coal, load into cars, ship to Duluth, unload from ships and haul on cars and ship to Minneapolis and St. Paul and sell there at a price so low that our western North Dakota products can't compete with it it would seem it is high time the trade clubs of this mid-west section took an active interest in the coal rate matter. There is no justification for that rate increase."

He indicated that what action the coal operators might take must be decided by the board of directors but declared that action certainly would be started to fight to the last ditch any increase in North Dakota rates.

Increases in lignite coal rates proposed on both intra-state and interstate business by the railroads operating in North Dakota will be vigorously fought by lignite operators of North Dakota, it is expected here. The intra-state tariffs proposed by the railroads, effective December 6, were ordered suspended for 120 days by the state railroad commission pending an investigation and hearing, the date of which will be set later.

W. P. Macomber of Wilton, president of the Washburn Lignite Coal Company, informed of the filing of the petition, declared that increases would be opposed.

"The lignite rates are high enough now," he said. "If the coal companies were making one-half as much as the railroads they would be satisfied. There isn't a lignite mine in the state making a dollar today."

Mr. Macomber said an increase would especially handicap the industry since it is now seeking to develop a market a longer distance from the mines than ever before.

The proposed increases, as figured by the railroad commission staff, range from 40 to 60 percent on one line hauls and smaller increases on two and three line hauls. A general increase is sought in whatever manner lignite is moved.

The railroads, in their petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission a copy of which was delivered to the state commission, cited a former decision of the United States Supreme Court in which lignite rates existing many years ago were held to be confiscatory. In their petition on state rates the carriers point to the Holmes and Hallows case which involved bituminous coal rates in the Northwest.

The railroad commission, in suspending the proposed increase for 120 days, acted according to the usual practice. In announcing the suspension the commission said it took the action on the ground that the comparison to the Holmes and Hallows decision was not justified because of the difference in heating value of the two commodities, and because the proposed rates would be unjust and unreasonable, and prejudicial to the shippers and people of the state. A resolution asking the

NEW SPIRIT STIRS YOUNG MEN OF SOVIET

Youths of Russia Resemble Those of the U. S. Except For Clothes and Speech

COUNTRY SHOW ADVANCE

Russians of Past Were Timid in Demanding Their Rights From the World

Moscow, Russia, Nov. 7.—An eighteen year old boy of the coming Russian generation boarded the Riga-Moscow express at a wayside station the other day, and drew the interested attention of a carload of foreign passengers. He was freckle-faced, smiling, energetic, buoyant, and full of nationalism, and he seemed to typify an important element that in recent years, has come out of the crucible in which the present day leaders of Russia are mixing their international chemicals.

Change this lad's Russian blouse for a suit of the "college clothes" extensively advertised in America; his round-necked shirt cut for the prevailing style across the sea, his soft peasant accent for slang-spinked United States, and he might have been an American boy boasting of his own home town, his own state, and the U. S. A. in general.

The Russian youth was a railroad guard. The locomotive on his train, built by Russians ten years ago and repaired by Russians a few weeks before, was better than any locomotive ever built abroad, its driver, wheels, higher, and its speed surely greater. His train was cleaner, his railway administration was better, his country's crops best, his country's future the rosier.

Forced On People
The determination of Peter the Great back in 1700 forced upon his people an acceptance of the idea that the accomplishments of western civilization were superior to their own. This thought lived a long time, for up to six years ago, Russia, particularly the educated young, were inclined to swallow without question the claims of foreign civilization to superiority. They were timid violets in the field of nationalism, shyly offering Russian art as an offset to the more practical accomplishments of the Germans, English, Americans and French.

In 1917 the Russian Soviet government set out to establish a spirit of internationalism throughout Russia and the world at large, and the Third International is still preaching the Utopia of an international brotherhood, attainable by a revolutionary proletarian dictatorship.

This young railroad guard is a product of the last revolution. Many thousands like him may be found throughout Russia today, perhaps they have absorbed and assimilated of internationalism, but to more than one observer of Russia they seem to be red-blooded, enthusiastic nationalists, and nothing else. The "Red Army" to them means the Russian army; the "Red Fleet" means the Russian fleet, and the "Red Air Service" means Russian aviation.

FIND WOMAN'S CHARRED BODY

Police in Alabama Seeking to Solve Mystery

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 7.—Officers working on the mystery in connection with the finding of a charred body of a woman in a negro church building which burned near Tuscaloosa last week have another possible clue on which to work today with the arrest here last night of Jack Johnson, who was lodged in the city jail on a dangerous and suspicious charge. According to police when he was arrested in a rooming house he had newspaper clippings giving accounts of the fire and on the back of the card was the name of a young woman reported missing since the night of the church burning.

Although Tuscaloosa officials say the identity of the victim has not been established, Chief Deputy Sheriff Henry Hill, Jefferson county, who returned from Tuscaloosa yesterday morning insists that the name of the woman is known although there are other points to be investigated before he can make known his findings. Alf Winchester, who was arrested in connection with the case Sunday, maintains his innocence. His preliminary trial is being arranged.

The body of the woman in the church showed that the skull had been fractured and the ribs fractured. Officials are confident the fire was for the purpose of hiding the murder.

WOULD BAR BADGE TACKLE

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Teaching swimming to a boys' Y. M. C. A. class to earn money for university expenses today was the basis of a charge of professionalism against one of the star athletes of the western conference.

The protest is made against Ed C. Garber, tackle on the University of Wisconsin eleven, just on the eve of the crucial Wisconsin-Illinois game Saturday. The protest, if allowed, means that he will be barred from all athletics on the ground that he was a paid coach.

IF HE HADN'T FOUND IT—

Scores of Chicagoans might have been killed. Detective Sergeant L. McDonough discovered the "plant" in a building in the heart of the Loop. Police blame labor troubles for it. Here is the sergeant examining the sticks. Dangerous literackers, all right!

Incident a year ago, when, as the Badgers prepared to meet the Illinois, a protest came from Illinois quarters, which disquieted Murray, another star Wisconsin tackle. This protest brought out the wrath of "Big John" Richards, then Wisconsin coach, and almost resulted in a severance of athletics relations between the two universities.

The attempt to have Garber ruled out of competition emanates from a different source, according to reliable reports here. Major John Griffith, western conference athletic commissioner, however, refused to reveal the source of the protest.

RICHHOLT BOYS WIN BIG RELAY FROM MANDAN

Carry Note-Supposed to Contain Message from Mandan to Bismarck Mayor

The Bismarck Boys Athletic association staged its first cross country relay race yesterday afternoon. The teams started at the N. P. depot, Mandan, and finished at the N. P. depot, Bismarck, a distance of six miles. Twelve boys constituted a team each boy running half a mile. There were four teams representing the Wm. Moore, Richholt, St. Mary's schools, and the High School Freshmen. The first runner of each team starting at Mandan carried a kit bag, which was supposed to contain a message from the mayor of Mandan to Mr. Lenhart, mayor of Bismarck, the object being to see which team would first deliver its message. The message was delivered in 33 minutes and 50 seconds by the Richholt team, which beat out the Wm. Moore by four or five inches only. In the early part of the race the Richholt gained quite a lead but determined effort on the part of Doug Yeater and Buster Rossen brought Harlow Griffin, Wm. Moore's last man, to within twenty or twenty-five yards of Landers, Richholt's finish man. With a splendid burst of speed Griffin caught his man at the International building, from there in to the finish it was a great battle, Landers winning by a few inches.

The teams were—Richholt—Harold Yeasly, Elmer Benner, Jim Coleman, Ferry Conway, Harold Leach, Bill Leupold, Floyd Sunderland, Ross Danley, Earl Ode, Fred Anderson, Gord Landers and Fred Landers.

Wm. Moore—Spencer Sell, Jno. Russell, Maynard Peterson, Ogden Ward, Neil York, Ralph Stenehoel, Ben Jacobson, Andy Berth, Doug Yeater, Hy Brown, Buster Rossen and Harlow Griffin.

St. Mary's—Andy Hummel, Jno. Neighbour, Cris Jungla, Alex Neighbour, Mat Hummel, Ed Sprigg, Leo Payson, Vic Cervinski, Adam Brown, Joe Ekornick, Wend Schneider, Joe Neighbour.

ROTARIANS IN TRIBUTE AT MEETING

Silent Appreciation of Memory of Mrs. E. G. Patterson Is Expressed

BANNER ATTENDANCE

Rotarians in session at the McKenz hotel this noon, paid silent tribute to the memory of Mrs. E. G. Patterson who passed away early this morning. Except for two verses of America there was no singing program, and Henry Duemeland, president of Rotary, instructed the resolutions committee to draw up suitable expressions of sympathy and forward them to the bereaved husband. Mr. Duemeland explained the late Mrs. Patterson's interest as well as that of the husband in preparing for Rotary during the early days of its existence in Bismarck. Before luncheon all Rotarians stood in silence for a moment in respect to the deceased.

A banner attendance characterized Rotary today, the average being more than ninety-three percent. Next week when Governor Nestos addresses the club has been set for 100 percent week.

Dr. E. P. Quain was the chief speaker of the day and urged the necessity of greater preparedness for the nation's defense. He told of his recent trip to Detroit to attend the officers' reserve conference which he declared the utter lack of preparedness and the indifference of Congress and the people generally were commented upon and deplored. He urged every member to write his congressman to support the plan of the war department to strengthen the nation's defenses.

Upon request of Rev. George Newcomb the following Rotarians were named to assist in a drive to raise $1,000 for support of the Society for the Friendless Child: Bird, Arthur; Bob Simpson; James Taylor and L. H. Richmond. The campaign is set for November 26.

The day's program was in charge of Fred Conklin and V. L. La Rose. Mr. Conklin presided.

Several birthdays were commemorated. James Taylor on behalf of Rotary presented Bob Webb with a suitable gift. George Bird late of the bachelor blue gave a special gift to Bob.

Bob Simpson presented Will Lahtz with a gift and best wishes of Rotary upon his birthday and George Duemeland's birthday was suitably noted by Hal Dobler.

Arthur Arnot spoke on principles of Rotary as they affect business placing special emphasis upon the value of letter writing as a business asset.

T. R. Atkinson, head of the committee to secure closer cooperation between the schools and the public, stated that it was the plan of that committee to begin visits to the schools. A parent-teacher organization, he said, was also under consideration.

W. F. H. Burnett, a Dickinson Rotarian, spoke briefly on the Dickinson club and his impressions of the Bismarck organization.

Guests for the day were: Capt. Baird, Dickinson; W. F. Burnett, Dickinson; O. F. Woolrich, Minneapolis and Oliver Lundquist, assistant postmaster.

Violent Debates Enliven Meetings Of Yugoslavians

Belgrade, Nov. 7.—Summoned recently to consider minor taxation problems, the Yugoslavian Skupstina, or parliament, developed a stormy session far beyond the estimated period of only a few uneventful days.

The Skupstina, with its representation of all classes in the state, furnished a good picture of the population of Yugoslavia. Among the most outspoken members are peasants in native costume who take a prominent part in the stormy discussions.

The Slovakian group had a lively passage at arms with the true, or "pravy" Serbians. They swayed when the Serbian deputy Vretchko, complaining of the measures of repression adopted by the radical government, got up and announced that life under Austria was much more livable than it is under Serbia. Yankovitch, the minister of communications, thereupon stirred up a storm by inviting Vretchko and his fellow Slovenians to emigrate to Austria if they did not like living in Serbia.

The opposition greeted the government's invitation with cat-calls and the slamming of desk-covers, while the Serbian radicals cheered loudly. The scene reminded one observer of the old days in the Austrian legislature, when the same radical battles were fought.

BRITISH SHIPS HALT RED SEA SLAVE TRAFFIC

War Did Not End Trade After War as Thought, It Is Contended

London, Nov. 7.—Although the slave trade is commonly supposed to have been suppressed all over the world, two British ships, the Clematis and the Comflower, have been engaged in suppressing this traffic in the Red Sea for the last two years. Not only have they succeeded in stopping most of the Red Sea slave trade, but they have also stopped gun-running which was occasionally attempted.

High prices are paid for slaves in this part of the world, who are generally captured from the coastal tribes and sold to the Arabs, who take their victims inland.

A communication from a member of the crew of the Clematis tells an interesting story:

"We had spent a period of two years in the Red Sea," he says, "witnessing very varied scenes of tropical life, and experiencing the almost intolerable heat of two summers. The duties of the two Red Sea ships are primarily to frustrate the diabolical bartering of humans which unfortunately still continues to a much larger extent than one is led to believe."

"On one occasion and how was detained which had been thus trading, but it is to be regretted that the occupants successfully evaded capture, and carried away with them the gold they had received for their slaves."

"It was, however, an exciting incident, for when we first tried to board they opened fire on our whalers. This necessitated the latter returning to the ship, and we eventually fired about eight rounds at the escaping crew."

"On another occasion a show was captured full of slaves, boys and girls between the ages of seven and 17."

SEES BIRTH OF SUPER-RACE IN NEAR FUTURE

Human Beings Will be Perfect Types and Sex of Children Pre-Determined

HAS MARRIAGE PLAN

Woman Should Have the Right to Propose to Man She Wishes to Marry

By Maurice Henle
NEA Service Staff Writer

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 8.—Birth of a new race of superior beings, perfect men and women in every sense of the word, is about to come to pass.

If the 33-year-old dream of Dr. Alzamon Ira Lucas, founder and head of the Super-Race Foundation of Rochester and New York, comes true.

The method of creating this superior race is really a complex matter. Dr. Lucas, in a long and earnest interview, explained everything, which, for the purpose of dissemination to the public, may be stated as follows:

This January the work of the Super-Race Foundation will find concrete expression in a convention called "The American Congress of Superior Caucasians." Dr. Lucas believes only the pure-blooded Caucasian should rule the United States, just as only the pure-blooded Mongolian should control the reigns of government of China.

Selecting Super-Parents

At this congress he hopes to have, besides the delegates, a group of about 60 men and women, equally divided. These will have been selected in various states of the country and at the congress will receive tests of intellect, body and morality. He believes that out of the supermen and women thus found, probably ten or more will fall in love with each other and eventually marry, although he will not in any way try to force such a thing.

These six persons, three couples, will go out into the world, teaching the doctrines of the superior man, multiplying themselves, and in that way eventually wipe out those diseased in body and mind.

"I hesitate to say how long this will take. Probably ten generations. Probably 20 or 30. But why rush?" Dr. Lucas says. "There is no hurry. Granted that the man and woman, found to be superior, are in complete harmony, they can beget children whose sex they not only can determine before birth, but whose vocation as well they can forecast."

"There must be a mutual, soulful understanding. They must be able to project the picture of the type of child they wish. Many say that if the sex and vocation of a child can be predetermined, that all parents will wish for doctors, lawyers, writers and such."

"But remember that a stream can go no higher than its source and the same applies to human beings. If the parents are of the lower type, their children will likewise have those tendencies. And that stands for each type of human of which there are 12."

Women To Choose Husbands

"Some say that everyone will want a boy. But I believe that the woman should have the first choice and that should be a girl."

"The woman certainly should choose her husband, even if it is necessary to propose to him. 'Certainly, when the superior race comes into existence there will be no disease, no worry, no trouble, no hatred, no wars. The superman will be all man, not half man and half woman as we find so often today. And the superwoman will be all woman, not half woman and half man as we see now. They will have definite places in the world, and not go aimlessly from job to job as the people of this generation do."

"Just tell the people to have faith, the faith that is the essence of things loved and willed in the realm of conscious activity."

Dr. Lucas holds the theory that no new life ever is created. All that is in the world, has been in the world since creation. All that is to come, is here now. Everyone is as old as time itself.

WOMEN ARE CREATURES OF INSTINCT

Dr. Fisk Says Women Are Not Inferior to Man Because of This

By MARIAN HALE
NEA Service Writer

New York, Nov. 7.—Well, granted we are creatures of instinct, and not reason, what's wrong with that?

This is all: we women have taken this charge from the opposite sex too seriously. We've almost come to believe our lack of reasoning ability makes us inferior to man.

But no. Here's a man himself who sides with us. He's Dr. Eugene Lyman Fisk, medical director of the Life Extension Institute here. In fact, Dr. Fisk, well known for his activities in connection with the promotion of personal hygiene and the prolongation of life goes even further. He urges us to continue in our own feminine ways, for our instincts, he adds, are basically sound, to be depended upon and logical.

For instance—take the matter of age.

The best of us will hedge when it comes to that, or will slice off a few years when no one is looking if we think we can get away with it. Or we'll indulge in a nice little cry when the birthday anniversary comes around, no matter how handsomely we may have fared in the way of gifts.

Discards Birthdays.

Men call this vanity. But it isn't, the doctor says. "There's just one thing to do about birthdays," he assured me. "Forget them. Women's way is the only way. Discard the calendar as a record of age. Let's measure our age by our physical condition, which is the only fair measure, and be as old or as young as our bodies."

"Not that I have any objections to calendars," he explained, "but we have attached such false significance to 30, 40 and 50 that it is almost impossible not to let down at each milestone, just because the years seem to call for it."

Then there's good ground for the other feminine instinct—the desire to alter the figure. Do you number among your acquaintances one woman who isn't dieting to reduce or to increase her weight? "Instinctively a woman realizes she must control her physical contour if she is to keep from 'settling down,'" Dr. Fisk went on. "As women give up exercise and yield to overindulgence in food, the aging process manifests itself in flesh and flabbiness."

Wrong Step.

"Women who have become neurotic, anemic and undernourished lose their feeling of youth and seek to regain it by adding on flesh and restoring the natural stature."

"To be sure, many women in their eagerness to keep young and agile have not followed the most judicious but the laziest means. They depend on cosmetics and alternate starving and gorging to do what only reasonable diet, fresh air, exercise and a cheerful philosophy and tenacity to youthful illusions and enthusiasms can do."

"But through their determination to stay young in face and in form, women have set up better standards for men and have imposed better living conditions upon the world. In all forms of public health work and health propaganda you will find more woman workers than men, because these activities give them an opportunity to follow their natural instincts and impulses toward perfection."

"So, instead of curbing their impulses toward health and beauty, women should develop them," he concluded.

BOY KILLS LYNX.

Marmarth, N. D., Nov. 8.—Marcel Bizener was successful in killing a lynx. He was successful in killing a pair of wildcats in the Dickey draw southeast of town Monday evening. The youngster was hunting with a big double barreled shotgun when he discovered the oldest one of the two cats and shot it, breaking two of its legs. The cat managed to spring up the bank and started for him in a threatening manner when he managed to strike it in the head with the butt of the gun. No sooner had he killed the first cat, than he discovered a second one in the draw where he killed the first shot. There are not many of these wild cats, a species of lynx, still inhabiting this country and a hunter is lucky indeed to see one of them, but this youngster has eclipsed all previous efforts by killing two in one afternoon.

CASS COUNTY POTATOES GROWERS ORGANIZED

Fargo, Nov. 9.—Roy Johnson of Casselton was named chairman of the Cass county committee which will take charge of the organization work of a Cass county unit of the proposed North Dakota Potato Growers Co-operative exchange, at the meeting at Casselton.

Cass county is the first county unit to be organized, and ready to begin the campaign. Several other valley counties are expected to be lined up soon and then the membership drive will start in earnest, C. R. Morgan, campaign director, declares.

COUGHS, COLDS, WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. Will Hall, R. No. 3, Baxley, Ga., states: "I am writing to all who suffer from coughs, colds, croup or whooping cough. I cannot recommend Foley's Honey and Tar too much, and I can't keep house without it. Have been using it since 1919 and have found it the best medicine there is for grown-ups and children." ## NEW LONDON MAYOR NEEDS DEEP POCKET

Will be Called Upon to Dig Deep Into Them as London's Head

By MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Writer

London, Nov. 8.—Beginning Nov. 1 and continuing for one year, Sir Louis A. Newton will every month dig down into his jeans, draw forth a bunch of kale and proceed to spend it with a lavish hand. Which, translated into Londonese, means that the aldermen of the city of London have just elected him lord mayor.

On Nov. 9 alone he will spend about $15,000 to give himself a nice lord mayor's pageant down Fleet street to the law courts and back, and to spread a rich feast for some 600 invited guests, including some of the greatest in the land. All this to celebrate his formal induction into office.

Thereafter the calls upon his purse will be endless. Which is why the lord mayor is always a rich man.

To the uninitiated it must be explained that the gigantic metropolis is divided into various boroughs, each of which has its own government. Thus there is a mayor of Holborn, of Westminster, of Shoreditch, etc.

But the most important of all the London boroughs is the City of London. When you say City here you always mean the square mile of territory which comprises the oldest and most important part of the metropolis, and includes the great banks of the famous buildings. It alone has a lord mayor. The others are a mere garden variety of mayors. Here is how a lord mayor is made. The people vote for aldermen who have a life job. From their own body in rotation in order of seniority they choose a lord mayor each year. Thus each alderman, if he lives long enough, is sure to be lord mayor some day.

The City is generous enough with its chief executive. He presides over the councilmen and aldermen and acts as a police magistrate. For this he gets 10,000 pounds, or about $50,000, a year. He is also given Mansion House, all furnished, as his official residence.

But all this is a mere drop in the bucket. Out of his own pocket the lord mayor usually spends $100,000, or more. One recent lord mayor spent $300,000.

To begin with, he must give four great banquets which are fixed events. One of these is his own banquet on the day he is sworn into office. Then there is a banquet for the bishops and church dignitaries, another for the judges, an another for the bankers, at which the chancellor of the exchequer usually makes one of the most important speeches of the year.

If for any reason the king of England wants to come down into the City he had to get formal permission from the lord mayor. Such visits are usually made in state and often there is a gorgeous banquet, all of which eats up the lord mayor's money.

Finally the lord mayor is supposed to head all big charities. For instance, when the Japanese earthquake news reached London the present lord mayor at once called upon the citizens to contribute to a relief fund. And, of course, the lord mayor led the list with a substantial donation.

SMUGGLED CATTLE SEIZED

Crosby, N. D., Nov. 8.—Twenty-eight head of cattle bought and paid for by a local cattle buyer, were seized by H. A. Roberts of Crosby, customs officer here and two other federal officers. The latter declared the cattle had been smuggled across the Canadian boundary by Canadian farmers and marketed here, in order to avoid the duty and take advantage of the higher price offered in the United States.

SUNFLOWERS FOR FUEL

Cando, N. D., Nov. 8.—Use of sunflowers for winter fuel is a successful practice of a number of Towner county farmers, according to County Agent Jay W. Lawton, who declares that many farmers will use the sunflower crop from 3 or 4 acres of land to keep their homes heated until next spring. "Several men have told me that the sunflower heads burn like a good sized chunk of coal, and they also chop up the stalks and use them for wood," Mr. Lawton declares. "In growing the sunflowers for fuel, they are planted about four feet apart each way. Many farmers also use the heads for chicken feed."

ARMISTICE DAY PARADE PLAN IS MADE

Starts at 2 p. m. Monday from Postoffice—Program at the City Auditorium

DAY IS PROCLAIMED

Armistice Day falling this year on Sunday, November 11, will be generally observed throughout the state on Monday, November 12. Governor Nestos, in an Armistice Day proclamation today, said that it would seem more fitting and proper that the celebration be held on Monday.

The celebration in Bismarck will start at 2 p. m. Monday. A parade will move from the postoffice at that hour, headed by St. Mary's band. It is expected that ex-service men, members of Company A, veterans of the Spanish-American and Civil wars and other organizations will be in the parade.

The parade will end at the auditorium, where a patriotic program, consisting of band and vocal music, readings and a speech by former Governor J. M. Devine, will be given. The Governor's proclamation on Armistice day follows:

"The signing of the Armistice brought joy to millions of hearts. Everywhere the expressions of devotion to the principles and ideals for which our American soldiers had fought were mingled with prayers that the terrors and heartaches of war might never again be the experience of our people.

"We felt the need of a constant reminder of these principles and ideals in order that our loyalty and devotion to them might remain unabated and Armistice day was very properly made a legal holiday upon which our citizenship should meet for the consideration of the great national and humanitarian ideals upon which our republic has been founded and maintained, and for the preservation of which our soldiers fought.

Whereas, Armistice day this year falls on Sunday and it would seem more fitting and proper that the general observance of it be held on the following day.

"Now, therefore, I, R. A. Nestos, governor of the state of North Dakota, do hereby request that our people observe Monday, November 12, 1923, as Armistice day and do hereby urge that all patriotic organizations and individuals interested in the perpetuation of the great principles for which our nation entered the World War, join in a proper observance of this day; that the flag of our country be displayed throughout the day on all public buildings, and that both the flag of our country and the service flag be displayed on the eleventh and twelfth at the homes of our people.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the state of North Dakota, this seventh day of November, A. D. 1923.

(Signed) R. A. NESTOS, Governor.

DISHER TELLS HOW HE STOLE FROM BANK

Cashier Makes Confession Relating Methods Used By Him

Cando, Nov. 8.—Howard M. Disher, cashier of the closed state bank of Olmstead, N. D., admits, in a signed confession, that he had embezzled $32,000 of the bank's money, and to having forged the names of farmers in the community to notes amounting to $7,149. Disher, who is now in the county jail at Cando, awaiting trial, said in his confession:

"That notes, which are now held by the First National Bank of St. Paul, St. Paul, Minn., as collateral to an indebtedness due and owing from the State Bank of Olmstead to the said First National Bank of St. Paul, were signed by me, with the said First National Bank of St. Paul, as representing true notes and true signatures thereon, that the said notes, hereinafter described and so pledged as collateral with the First National Bank of St. Paul were forged by me as to the amount and signature.

"That the notes were by me forged and pledged by me as collateral to the First National Bank of St. Paul, St. Paul, Minn., as renewal notes of notes purporting to be the notes of same parties which said notes were also signed by me and purporting to be the genuine signatures of the makers thereof.

"That I have issued on behalf of the State Bank of Olmstead and as cashier thereof certificates of deposit, which said certificates of deposit were not registered by me upon the records of said bank, nor in the certificate of deposit register, nor any record made whatsoever of same to the sum of $14,096.50, of which the sum of $9546.50 was used by me for the purpose of replenishing the bank for notes held by said bank which were objectionable and worthless, and part of said amount was used by me to finance the business of the Olmstead Auto Co., of which I was partner, and the balance, $4,550.00, of the above certificates of deposit were issued by me in behalf of the State Bank of Olmstead for promissory notes given by the makers thereof.

Oil Spreader for Rough Seas to Help Ships in Storms

To calm rough waters around ships caught in storms, a southern man has invented a spreader that sprays oil over a large area around the vessel. Pumped from a tank on deck, the fluid passes far out from the boat to umbrella-like devices of canvas that are set floating in the sea. It can be used for large or small craft, or from lifeboats while making their way through heavy waves in the event of disaster. The illustration shows the oil spreader being used from ships and shore to subdue breakers and protect passengers, vessels and breakwaters. A close-up of the spreader is shown in the inset.

Poles of Elastic Concrete Bend Without Breaking

Hollow, concrete poles, designed to carry electric transmission lines, are being made by a process that allows them to bend under heavy strains without breaking. The top of a 64-foot pole will swing 7 feet from its normal position and back again without injury. Laid in a horizontal mold, the steel skeleton of the pole is covered with concrete, and revolved 1,000 times a minute. The force drives the concrete against the sides, where it forms a shell over the framework. The finished product is kept in the mold for two days and then buried in damp sand for four weeks to season. This method of manufacture was developed in Europe.

Although there is said to be no exact record of the number of laws on the statute books of the nation, experts have calculated that in one year, 13,000 of 40,000 bills presented in the legislatures of 35 states, were passed at a cost of about $900 each. Congress handles from 10,000 to 20,000 bills each session, and it is estimated, passed 930 before its last adjournment. Estimators figure that there are between 50,000 and 100,000 state and federal laws.

The combination rotary harrow and drag shown in the drawing and used for pulverizing clods can be made in a short time from material available on every farm. It consists of five 6-ft lengths of 2 by 10-in. lumber, nailed or bolted to two 2 by 4-in. endpieces, and a 6-ft. wooden roller, attached to the front so that it will revolve when the drag is pulled over the ground. Rows of teeth, made from heavy spikes, are then driven in so that they project about 4 in., and the heads cut off and the teeth sharpened. Two 3/4-in. bolts, driven into each end of the roller, serve as journals, and turn in bearing holes in the 2 by 4-in. endpieces. The drag may be weighted down with stones, or if desired an old mower seat may be attached to it for the farmer's comfort.

FARM CROPS GAIN AS ACRES SHOW DECLINE

Statistics for Decade Reveal This According to Experts

ERRORS IN OLD REPORTS

Madison, Wis., Nov. 8.—Agricultural production in the United States during the last decade has increased, although the number of acres in agriculture has declined, according to statistics compiled by the Institute for Research in Land Economics and Public Utilities, with headquarters here.

The study indicates a return of agriculture to normal conditions by the steady increase in population, and includes a comparison of the increase in population with the interest in land devoted to agriculture.

"The farm area increased only approximately nine percent from 1910 to 1920, and most of this was in the semi-arid states," the summary declares. "There were fewer acres in farms in 1920 than in 1910 in many of the states in the corn belt and in virtually all the states east of the Mississippi river."

"Part of this decrease is accounted for by errors in former enumeration, and in the south by failure to include woodland as a part of the farm area. The growth of cities, development of factories, industries, mining and the increase in highways and railroads account for the remaining decrease."

"More significant is the permanent reversion of farm land to forest and brush because it was not fit for agriculture," the summary continues. "Throughout the eastern section, land has gone back to a more economical use. The last census reveals an increase of 5.5 percent in area of improved land but an increase of 36 percent in unimproved land. The increase in unimproved land is almost equal in acres to the increase in all farm land. The significant fact is that production has maintained and even increased by more intensive utilization of better lands and less intensive use of poorer lands."

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Although wheat prices were on the downgrade most of the time today the market scored something of an advance just at the finish. The fact that the corn market had reached a new high price record for the season was chiefly responsible for the late upturn in wheat. Closing figures for wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to half a cent higher with Dec. 1923 at 1-4 cents and May 1911-12 at 1-4 cents. In the final dealings wheat reversed its action and rose with corn.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—With Liverpool quotations showing a decline and with predictions current that the U. S. visible supply today on Monday would show a liberal increase wheat here underwent a decline today during the early dealings. British plans for tariff measures likely to interfere with United States trade were construed as a bearish factor, although wheat is expected from the proposed action. On the other hand corn strength tended to strengthen wheat, downturns. # FRENCH HEELS O. K. Angle of Feet Causes Trouble, Says Woman Gym Instructor

MISS THOMSON TELLING GIRL STUDENTS HOW TO WALK CORRECTLY.

By NEA Service.
Eugene, Ore., Nov. 8.—Girls, stick to your French heels. They're perfectly proper and harmless.

Take this advice from Miss Harriet Thomson, professor of physical education for women at the University of Oregon, here.

"It's not the height of the heel, but the angle of the foot that usually causes foot troubles," is Miss Thomson's opinion.

"French heels have been blamed too long for all women's foot troubles," she goes on. "Any woman who hasn't weak ankles can wear French heels without harm as long as she points her feet straight ahead."

"Women don't realize how many of their trouble come from this habit of pointing the toes out. The first result is painful feet. Then, when the woman tries to take the weight, and strain off her feet she drops her shoulders forward and her chest down, and there is soon a drooping of internal organs."

"This is followed by indigestion, constipation, and lack of circulation. 'At the University of Oregon we find that not only do girls work and think better when the defects of posture have been eliminated, but they actually get higher grades.'" sons why Czech exchange is so high is because the people are meeting their obligations to the state," Mr. Vopicka added that he is making a careful study of European conditions at this time for use in next year's presidential campaign in the United States, and gave it as his opinion that European affairs are destined to play a prominent part in the coming election.

English Shun Poor Shoes
London, Nov. 8.—London stores will no longer exhibit cheap, shoddy and ill-fitting shoes; in their stead will be found the latest perfectly modelled lasts of Paris.

The shoe manufacturers of England are generally agreed that the public avoid the shops that sell ill-fitting shoddy footwear and would rather pay more money for shoes that wear well without causing physical disabilities.

The result of the action of many manufacturers in putting cheap shoes on the market to meet the reduced spending power of the public, is that there are huge stocks of these shoes on hand which it is impossible to sell.

AGITATION COLLAPSES.
New York, Nov. 7.—What is called the "collapse of anti-Semitic agitation in the United States," and the fact that no attempt on any considerable scale was made during the past year to revive the propaganda, has had a "most salutary effect in minimizing anti-Jewish activities in Europe," according to the sixteenth annual report of the American Jewish committee made public here. The report credits the collapse of the anti-Jewish propaganda to the vigorous protests of the press, the church, and other American organs of public opinion.

Lillian Sibley Is Grilled in Court

Lillian Sibley, alleged victim of illegal attentions paid her by Herbert Marty, farmer, and the husband of her sister, was the principal witness on the stand through long hours of questioning and cross examination in the trial of the State of North Dakota vs. Herbert Marty charged with first degree rape.

State's Attorney J. P. Cain of Stark county is conducting the prosecution and assisted by State's Attorney L. H. Connolly of Mandan, and Attorney L. A. Simpson is appearing for the defense.

Marty is alleged to have seduced the girl in 1920 when the girl, his wife's sister, came to visit at his home and assist when his wife was ill, continued his illicit relations for a couple of years, and is also charged with being the father of the girl's child.

Judge Berry is presiding in one case in which Judge Pugh of Dickinson is disqualified. Actions against John A. Grinstein and Truman Purdy have been placed at the foot of the calendar pending the appearance of their counsels. The former is charged with embezzlement and Purdy faces a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Trial in the case of the State vs. McKee will be the first of the 11 Morton county criminal actions to be tried. McKee, a Dickinson man, is charged with conspiring to have an abortion committed.

Following this L. C. Hoppenstedt, a former banker at Fort Rice will face trial on two rape charges.

Mrs. J. E. Cain, formerly Miss Cecelia Connolly is here from Dickinson with her husband, State's Attorney J. P. Cain, who is trying cases in the district court.

ARMISTICE DAY PARADE PLAN IS MADE

DAY IS PROCLAIMED

Armistice Day falling this year on Sunday, November 11, will be generally observed throughout the state on Monday, November 12. Governor Nestos, in an Armistice Day proclamation today, said that it would seem more fitting and proper that the celebration be held on Monday.

The celebration in Bismarck will start at 2 p. m. Monday. A parade will move from the postoffice at that hour, headed by St. Mary's band. It is expected that ex-service men, members of Company A, veterans of the Spanish-American and Civil wars and other organizations will be in the parade.

The parade will end at the auditorium, where a patriotic program, consisting of band and vocal music, readings and a speech by former Governor J. M. Devine, will be given.

The governor's proclamation on Armistice Day follows:

"The signing of the Armistice brought joy to millions of hearts. Everywhere the expressions of devotion to the principles and ideals for which our American soldiers had fought were mingled with prayers that the terrors and heartaches of war might never again be the experience of our people.

"We felt the need of a constant reminder of those principles and ideals in order that our loyalty and devotion to them might remain unabated and Armistice day was very properly made a legal holiday upon which our citizenship should meet for the consideration of the great national and humanitarian ideals upon which our republic has been founded and maintained, and for the preservation of which our soldiers fought.

"Whereas, Armistice day this year falls on Sunday and it would seem more fitting and proper that the general observance of it be held on the following day.

"Now, Therefore, I, R. A. Nestos, governor of the state of North Dakota, do hereby request that our people observe Monday, November 12, as Armistice day and do hereby urge that all patriotic organizations and individuals interested in the perpetuation of the great principles for which our nation entered the World War, join in a proper observance of this day; that the flag of our country be displayed throughout the day on all public buildings, and that both on the flag of our country and the service flags be displayed on the eleventh and twelfth at the homes of our people.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the state of North Dakota, this seventh day of November, A. D. 1923.

(Signed) R. A. NESTOS, Governor.

THOMAS HALL, Secretary of State.

DISHER TELLS HOW HE STOLE FROM BANK

Cashier Makes Confession Relating Methods Used By Him

Cando, Nov. 8.—Howard M. Disher, cashier of the closed state bank of Olmstead, N. D., admits, in a signed confession, to having embezzled $32,000 of the bank's money, and to having forged the names of farmers in the community to notes amounting to $7,149. Disher, who is now in the county jail at Cando, awaiting trial, said in his confession:

"That notes, which are now held by the First National Bank of St. Paul, St. Paul, Minn., as collateral to an indebtedness of $20,000, and owing from the State Bank of Olmstead to the said First National Bank of St. Paul, were signed by me, with the said First National Bank of St. Paul, as representing true notes and true signatures thereon, that the said notes hereinafter described and so pledged as collateral with the First National bank of St. Paul were forged by me as to the amount and signature.

"That the notes were by me forged and pledged by me as collateral to the First National Bank of St. Paul, St. Paul, Minn., as renewal notes of notes purporting to be the notes of same parties which said notes were also signed by me and purporting to be the genuine signatures of the makers thereof.

No Record of C. D's.

"That I have issued on behalf of the State Bank of Olmstead and as cashier thereof certificates of deposit, which said certificates of deposit were not registered by me upon the records of said bank, nor in the certificate of deposit register, nor any record made whatsoever of same totaling $14,000.50, of which the sum of $35,400.50 was used by me for the purpose of replenishing the bank for notes held by said bank which were objectionable and worthless, and part of said amount was used by me to finance the business of the Olmstead Auto Co., of which I was partner, and the balance, $4,500.00, of the above certificates of deposit, were issued by me in behalf of the State Bank of Olmstead for promissory notes given by the makers thereof.

Oil Spreader for Rough Seas to Help Ships in Storms

To calm rough waters around ships caught in storms, a southern man has invented a spreader that sprays oil

over a large area around the vessel. Pumped from a tank on deck, the fluid passes far out from the boat to umbrella-like devices of canvas that are set floating in the sea. It can be used for large or small craft, or from lifeboats while making their way through heavy waves in the event of disaster. The illustration shows the oil spreader being used from ships and shore to subdue breakers and protect passengers, vessels and breakwaters. A close-up of the spreader is shown in the inset.

Poles of Elastic Concrete Bend Without Breaking

Hollow, concrete poles, designed to carry electric transmission lines, are being made by a process that allows them to bend under heavy strains without breaking. The top of a 64-foot pole will swing 7 feet from its normal position and back again without injury. Laid in a horizontal mold, the steel skeleton of the pole is covered with concrete, and revolved 1,000 times a minute. The force drives the concrete against the sides, where it forms a shell over the framework. The finished product is kept in the mold for two days and then buried in damp sand for four weeks to season. This method of manufacture was developed in Europe.

Thirteen Thousand Laws Are Enacted in Year

Although there is said to be no exact record of the number of laws on the statute books of the nation, experts have calculated that in one year, 13,000 of 40,000 bills presented in the legislatures of 35 states, were passed at a cost of about $900 each. Congress handles from 10,000 to 20,000 bills each session, and it is estimated, passed 930 before its last adjournment. Estimates figure that there are between 50,000 and 100,000 state and federal laws.

The garage-door catch shown in the drawing is used on garage doors to prevent the doors from swinging back against the car while driving it into or out of the garage. The arrangement is unusually simple in that only one piece of iron rod, bent to the shape shown, and pivoted to a wooden bracket, forms the complete catch. The wooden bracket is screwed to the side of the garage and a bolt on the end of the bracket is used as a pivot for the catch.

Combination Rotary Harrow and Drag

The combination rotary harrow and drag shown in the drawing and used for pulverizing clods can be made in a short time from material available on every farm. It consists of five 6-ft lengths of 2 by 10-in. lumber, nailed or bolted to two 2 by 4-in. endpieces, and a 6-ft. wooden roller, attached to the front so that it will revolve when the drag is pulled over the ground. Rows of teeth, made from heavy spikes, are then driven in so that they project about 4 in., and the heads cut off and the teeth sharpened. Two 2-in. bolts, driven into each end of the roller, serve as journals, and turn in bearing holes in the 2 by 4-in. endpieces. The drag may be weighted down with stones, or if desired an old mower seat may be attached to it for the farmer's comfort.

Cat-Tails Yield Flour, Silk, Starch, and Also Sugar

From the cat-tails found in almost every swamp, scientists have succeeded in making both food and cloth. Roots of the weed produce starch and sugar, the pollen has been used as a flour to make bread, the brown spikes make an excellent substitute for silk, and the fluffy down is valuable for stuffing pillows. The plant was first discovered by the Iroquois Indians and, during the Great War, it was extensively used throughout central Europe.

When the hearing of the state commission will be held is uncertain, but it is not expected for 60 to 90 days. Chairman Millhollan said he expected every commercial body in the state would expect to have its traffic representative make studies in the matter.

WHEAT TAKES SETBACK TODAY

Corn Strength, However, Helps to Hold Up Market

Chicago, Nov. 8.—Although wheat prices were on the downward grade most of the time today the market scored something of an advance just at the finish. The fact that the corn market had reached a new high price record for the season was chiefly responsible for the late upturn in wheat.

Closing figures for wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to half a cent higher with Dec. 1.06 1/2 to 1.4 cents and May $1.11 1/8 to 1.4 cents. In the final dealings wheat reversed its action and rose with corn.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—With Liverpool quotations showing a decline and with prices steady here, the U. S. visible supply today on Monday would show a liberal increase wheat here underwent a decline today during the early dealings. ## FARM CROPS GAIN AS ACRES SHOW DECLINE

ERRORS IN OLD REPORTS

Madison, Wis., Nov. 8.—Agricultural production in the United States during the last decade has increased, although the number of acres in agriculture has declined, according to statistics compiled by the Institute for Research in Land Economics and Public Utilities, with headquarters here.

The study indicates a return of agriculture to normal conditions by the steady increase in population, and includes a comparison of the increase in population with the interest in land devoted to agriculture.

"The farm area increased only approximately nine percent from 1910 to 1920, and most of this was in the semi-arid states," the summary declares. "There were fewer acres in farms in 1920 than in 1910 in many of the states in the corn belt and in virtually all the states east of the Mississippi river."

"Part of this decrease is accounted for by errors in former enumeration, and in the south by failure to include woodland as a part of the farm area. The growth of cities, development of factories, industries, mining and the increase in highways and railroads account for the remaining decrease."

"More significant is the permanent reversion of farm land to forest and brush because it was not fit for agriculture," the summary continues. "Throughout the eastern section, land has gone back to a more economical use. The last census reveals an increase of 5.5 percent in area of improved land but an increase of 36 percent in unimproved land. The increase in unimproved land is almost equal in acres to the increase in all farm land. The significant fact is that production has maintained and even increased by more intensive utilization of the better lands and less intensive use of poorer lands."

AGITATION COLLAPSES.

New York, Nov. 7.—What is called the "collapse of anti-Semitic agitation in the United States," and the fact that no attempt on any considerable scale was made during the past year to revive this propaganda, has had a "most salutary effect in minimizing anti-Jewish activities in Europe," according to the sixteenth annual report of the American Jewish committee made public here. The report credits the collapse of the anti-Jewish propaganda to the vigorous protests of the press, the church, and other American organs of public opinion.

European Affairs Will Figure in U. S. Election

Bucharest, Nov. 8.—Charles J. Vopicka, former United States Minister to Roumania, who is regarded here as an authority on international affairs, while on a visit to Bucharest, was interviewed by the financial weekly Bursas.

When asked his opinion about the present economic situation in Roumania and the measures necessary for improving exchange, Mr. Vopicka is reported to have said:

"If you want to better your money and gain the confidence of financial circles abroad, some way should be found to make the peasants pay their taxes. One of the main rea-

MISS THOMSON TELLING GIRL STUDENTS HOW TO WALK CORRECTLY.

By NEA Service.

Eugene, Ore., Nov. 8.—Girls, stick to your French heels. They're perfectly proper and harmless.

Take this advice from Miss Harriet Thomson, professor of physical education for women at the University of Oregon, here.

"It's not the height of the heel, but the angle of the foot that usually causes foot troubles," is Miss Thomson's opinion.

"French heels have been blamed too long for all women's foot troubles," she goes on. Any woman who hasn't weak ankles can wear French heels without harm as long as she points her feet straight ahead. "Women don't realize how many of their trouble come from this habit of pointing the toes out. The first result is painful feet. Then, when the woman tries to take the weight and strain off her feet she drops her shoulders forward and her chest down, and there is soon a drooping of internal organs."

"This is followed by indigestion, constipation, and lack of circulation. At the University of Oregon we find that not only do girls work and think better when the defects of posture have been eliminated, but they actually get higher grades."

Mr. Vopicka added that he is making a careful study of European conditions at this time for use in next year's presidential campaign in the United States, and gave it as his opinion that European affairs are destined to play a prominent part in the coming election.

SEES BIRTH OF SUPER-RACE IN NEAR FUTURE

Human Beings Will be Perfect Types and Sex of Children Pre-Determined

HAS MARRIAGE PLAN

Woman Should Have the Right to Propose to Man She Wishes to Marry

By Maurice Heale
NEA Service Staff Writer

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 8.—Birth of a new race of superior beings, perfect men and women in every sense of the word, is about to come to pass.

If the 33-year-old dream of Dr. Almon W. Lucas, founder and head of the Super-Race Foundation of Rochester and New York, comes true.

The method of creating this superior race is really a complex matter. Dr. Lucas, in a long and earnest interview, explained everything, which, for the purpose of dissemination to the public, may be stated as follows:

This January the work of the Super-Race Foundation will find concrete expression in a convention called "The American Congress of Superior Caucasians." Dr. Lucas believes only the pure-blooded Caucasian should rule the United States, just as only the pure-blooded Mongolian should control the reigns of government of China.

Selecting Super-Parents

At this congress he hopes to have, besides the delegates, a group of about 60 men and women, equally divided. These will have been selected in various states of the country and at the congress will receive tests of intellect, body and morality. He believes that out of the super-men and women thus found, probably ten per cent will fall in love with each other and eventually marry, although he will not in any way try to force such a thing.

These six persons, three couples, will go out into the world, teaching the doctrines of the superior man, multiplying themselves, and in that way eventually wipe out those diseased in body and mind.

WOMEN ARE CREATURES OF INSTINCT

Dr. Fisk Says Women Are Not Inferior to Man Because of This

BY MARIAN HALE
NEA Service Writer

New York, Nov. 7.—Well, granted we are creatures of instinct, and not reason, what's wrong with that?

This is all: we women have taken this charge from the opposite sex too seriously. We've almost come to believe our lack of reasoning ability makes us inferior to man.

But no. Here's a man himself who sides with us. He's Dr. Eugene Lyman Fisk, medical director of the Life Extension Institute here.

In fact, Dr. Fisk, well known for his activities in connection with the promotion of personal hygiene and the prolongation of life goes even further. He urges us to continue in our own feminine ways, for our instincts, he adds, are basically sound, to be depended upon and logical.

For instance—take the matter of age.

The best of us will hedge when it comes to that, or will slice off a few years when no one is looking if we think we can get away with it. Or we'll indulge in a nice little cry when the birthday anniversary comes around, no matter how handsomely we may have fared in the way of gifts.

Discards Birthdays.

Men call this vanity. But it isn't, the doctor says.

"There's just one thing to do about birthdays," he assured me. "Forget them. Women's way is the only way. Discard the calendar as a record of age. Let's measure our age by our physical condition, which is the only fair measure, and be as old or as young as our bodies."

"Not that I have any objections to calendars," he explained. "But we have attached such false significance to 30, 40 and 50 that it is almost impossible not to let down at each milestone, just because the years seem to call for it."

Then there's good ground for the other feminine instinct—the desire to alter the figure. Do you number among your acquaintances one woman who isn't dieting to reduce or to increase her weight?

"Instinctively a woman realizes she must control her physical condition if she is to keep from settling down," Dr. Fisk went on. "As women give up exercise and yield to overindulgence in food, the aging process manifests itself in flesh and babbiness."

Wrong Step.

"Women who have become neurotic, anemic and undernourished lose their feeling of youth and seek to regain it by adding on flesh and restoring the natural stature."

"To be sure, many women in their eagerness to keep young and agile have not followed the most judicious but the laziest means. They depend on cosmetics and alternate starving and gorging to do what only reasonable diet, fresh air, exercise and a cheerful philosophy and tenacity to youthful illusions and enthusiasms can do."

"But through their determination to stay young in face and in form, women have set up better standards for men and have imposed better living conditions upon the world. In all forms of public health work and health propaganda you will find more woman workers than men, because these activities give them an opportunity to follow their natural instincts and impulses toward perfection."

"So, instead of curbing their impulses toward health and beauty, women should develop them," he concluded.

BOY KILLS LYNX.

Marmarth, N. D., Nov. 8.—Marcel Bizener was successful in killing a Zizener was successful in killing a pair of wildcats in the Dickey draw northeast of town Monday evening.

The youngster was hunting with a big double barreled shotgun when he discovered the oldest one of the two cats and shot it, breaking two of its legs. The cat managed to spring up the bank and started for him in a threatening manner when he managed to strike it in the head with the butt of the gun. No sooner had he killed the first cat, than he discovered a second one in the draw where he killed the first shot.

There are not many of these wild cats, a species of lynx, still inhabiting this country and a hunter is lucky indeed to see one of them, but this youngster has eclipsed all previous efforts by killing two in one afternoon.

NEW LONDON MAYOR NEEDS DEEP POCKET

Will be Called Upon to Dig Deep Into Them as London's Head

BY MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Writer

London, Nov. 8.—Beginning Nov. 1 and continuing for one year, Sir Louis A. Newton will every month dig down into his jeans, draw forth a bunch of kale and proceed to spend it with a lavish hand. Which, translated into Londonese, means that the aldermen of the city of London have just elected him lord mayor.

On Nov. 9 alone he will spend about $15,000 to give himself a nice lord mayor's pageant down Fleet street to the law courts and back, and to spread a rich feast for some 700 invited guests, including some of the greatest in the land. All this to celebrate his formal induction into office.

Thereafter the calls upon his purse will be endless. Which is why the lord mayor is always a rich man.

To the uninitiated it must be explained that the gigantic metropolis is divided into various boroughs, each of which has its own government. Thus there is a mayor of Holborn, of Westminster, of Shoreditch, etc.

But the most important of all the London boroughs is the City of London. When you say City here you always mean the square mile of territory which comprises the oldest and most important part of the metropolis, and includes the great banks of the famous buildings. It alone has a lord mayor. The others are a mere garish variety of mayors.

Here is how a lord mayor is made. The people vote for aldermen who have a life job. From their own body in rotation in order of seniority they choose a lord mayor each year. Thus each alderman, if he lives long enough, is sure to be lord mayor some day.

The City is generous enough with its chief executive. He presides over the councilmen and aldermen and acts as a police magistrate. For this he gets 10,000 pounds, or about $50,000, a year. He is also given Mansion House, all furnished, as his official residence.

But all this is a mere drop in the bucket. Out of his own pocket the lord mayor usually spends $100,000, or more. One recent lord mayor spent $300,000.

To begin with, he must give four great banquets which are fixed events. One of these is his own banquet on the day he is sworn into office. Then there is a banquet for the bishops and church dignitaries, another for the judges, an another for the bankers, at which the chancellor of the exchequer usually makes one of the most important speeches of the year.

If for any reason the king of England wants to come down into the City he had to get formal permission from the lord mayor. Such visits are usually made in state and often there is a gorgeous banquet, all of which eats up the lord mayor's money.

Finally the lord mayor is supposed to head all big charities. For instance, when the Japanese earthquake, news reached London, the present lord mayor at once called upon the citizens to contribute to a relief fund. And, of course, the lord mayor led the list with a substantial donation.

SMUGGLED CATTLE SEIZED

Crosby, N. D., Nov. 8.—Twenty-eight head of cattle bought and paid for by a local cattle buyer, were seized by H. A. Roberts of Crosby, customs officer here and two other federal officers. The latter declared the cattle had been smuggled across the Canadian boundary by Canadian farmers and marketed here in order to avoid the duty and take advantage of the higher price offered in the United States.

The cattle buyer disclaimed having any knowledge that the cattle were smuggled. No charges were made against him.

SUNFLOWERS FOR FUEL

Cando, N. D., Nov. 8.—Use of sunflowers for winter fuel is a successful practice of a number of Towner county farmers, according to County Agent Jay W. Lawton, who declares that many farmers will use the sunflower crop from 3 or 4 acres of land to keep their homes heated until next spring.

"Several men have told me that the sunflower heads burn like a good sized chunk of coal, and they also chop up the stalks and use them for wood," Mr. Lawton declares. "In growing the sunflowers for fuel, they are planted about four feet apart each way. Many farmers also use the heads for chicken feed."

Dresses for Little Girls Made of Gingham in Smallest Checks

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

For little girls under six years, there is nothing startlingly novel in full styles. Their everyday dresses are still cut on straight lines, with or without separate yokes, and are made with panties to match. Gingham, in the smallest checks, or in deep colors with small cross-bar patterns in contrasting colors, remain the mainstay of the little girl's everyday outfit. The dress is made of plain chambray, cotton crepe, poplin and other strong cotton weaves. For woolen dresses there are novelty checked materials (usually made up with collar and cuffs of a plain fabric) serge, twill, gabardine and the like. Browns—those verging on red preferred—greens, soft blues and bright reds are prominent in color and quaint, colorful embroideries in pleasant designs, make appropriate adornments for dresses of plain materials. Velvetene is occasionally represented. Whatever the material, lines remain simple and straight, as in the two little dresses of checked gingham shown in the picture. The little frock at the left has a narrow yoke, with the body of the dress shifted in two rows at the top, and attached to it. The half-length sleeves are set in and finished with detachable cuffs that match the collar. These may all be of white linen or cotton or in a plain color. Very small and simple flower motifs are embroidered on the collar with colored floss and repeated on the yoke. Tiny pearl buttons and cut stitching make a finish for the shirt-yoke in the dress at the right which has a short front opening. The panties drop over an elastic band at the knees, but in the other model are finished with a band of the gingham.

Taffeta and crepe de chine continue to hold first place in the esteem of designers, for party frocks which are made up with matching panties. Narrow, fluted ruffles or pleated-edged frills, put on in double or even triple rows, finish the bottom of skirts and panties, collars and elbow length (or shorter) sleeves. Sometimes skirts are slashed half-way up at the sides and collars cut in scallops or deep points.

AT THE MOVIES

THE ELLING
A story of the West, unique, unusual, romantic, dramatic and at times highly humorous, is "The Elling," at the Eltinge theater Friday and Saturday.
"The Elling" which was directed by Lynn Reynolds, is a comedy-drama of the Northwest and offers an ideal starting vehicle for Colleen Moore, the newest First National star, who plays the titular role, that of a lovable, vicious and mischievous white girl, who has been reared among Indians.

The story centers around this girl of the woods, who, eager to marry a white man, kidnaps a handsome bashful young man from the city who has come into that country prospecting.

It is a delightful romantic comedy, replete with humor but not without a leaven of pathos. Its action is swift and its plot unique. Lloyd Hughes plays the leading male role and Russell Simpson and Walter Long will be seen in the principal heavy parts.

The exterior scenes of "The Elling" were taken in the most picturesque section of the California and Nevada high Sierras, among the mountains and lakes of the Mono lake district. This is the territory where Mark Twain laid the scenes of "Roughing It," his famous story of the gold-rush days.

Without doubt the location is one of the most scenically beautiful of the whole Sierra range, and until chosen for the locale of "The Elling," is said to have remained undiscovered by the motion picture makers.

KANSAS PAPER PRINTS BIBLE AS A SERIAL

Same Idea Has Been Carried Out by Other Newspapers and Found Successful

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 8.—A test of more than a year having proven the popularity of publishing the New Testament in serial form as a weekly feature. The Topeka State Journal, among the few if not the first newspaper in the United States to attempt such an innovation, has announced its plan to continue the series by printing the entire Bible in a "continued story" form.

The compilation has been prepared by Dr. Charles M. Sheldon, widely known Topeka minister and author, and editor of the Christian Herald of New York. It was on Dr. Sheldon's suggestion that the New Testament serial was started by The Journal.

The new serial will be known as "The Everyday Bible." It is a condensed form, all passages, of a controversial nature or such as might be considered objectionable for public reading being eliminated. The main historical data and teachings remain. "This form of the Bible is designed for the newspaper reader who has not the time nor perhaps the inclination to read the Bible in its entirety," said Arthur J. Carruth, Jr., manager of The Journal. "It is really a busy man's Bible, told in interesting story form."

"The printing of the New Testament in serial form has aroused interest all over the English speaking world. We have letters from every state in the Union; from many parts of Canada, from Australia and from England. Several British newspapers not only inquired about the success of the undertaking, but indicated their intention of adopting a like plan. A number of newspapers in the United States took up the serial. "Our publication of the New Testament will be completed next

Hair Like Mine

Has come to thousands in this easy way
By Edna Wallace Hopper

I found in France, many years ago, the greatest hair help science has discovered. My mother used it, and at 67 she had hair like mine today.

I have used it. My hair is the marvel of millions. It grows finer every year. I have never had falling hair or dandruff, never a touch of gray. And now, at the age of 62, it is hair that most girls envy.

I have supplied this help to countless friends, and it brought them like results. So I convinced that it means to millions such hair as cannot come without it. And I am going to help those millions get it.

What Experts Say
This formula, perfected by French experts, is based on lifetimes of hair study. They gave me these reasons for its amazing results.

It combats the hardened oil and dandruff which stifle the hair roots. They check the hair growth and destroy the hair. They choke the pigment which gives color to the hair. Thus it cleans the scalp, then it stimulates and fertilizes. Hair thrives under these conditions, just as flowers thrive in a well-kept garden.

It cannot harm the hair. It does not affect the natural color or artificial. It deals only with the scalp and the soil of the hair. And all the results come through reviving the roots.

WHEAT WHERE THE WEST BEGINS

SOME very interesting facts were contained in the statement in the Saturday Forum by Mr. A. H. Peterson of Mandan, president of the Missouri Slope Group of the N. D. Dakota Bankers Association, in which he called attention to financial conditions in the Slope country and the trend toward diversified farming.

He points out that the crop of a year ago permitted the farmers of the Slope to place themselves in a fair shape. It brought money into the country which was used to pay up eastern creditors, not only of real estate loans but accounts payable to mercantile houses. Increased deposits in the banks eased up the tension on the institutions generally and allowed banks to liquidate bills payable to a considerable extent.

As an example, he points to the fact that the Mandan banks had bills payable of more than $500,000 a year ago. Today that has been reduced to less than $80,000 and the banks show an increase of 20 per cent in deposits.

The farmers are going more and more into diversified farming, according to Mr. Peterson.

Morton County, for instance, has the famous New Salem Hygiene Breeder's Circuit and the Flasher Circuit. Dairying is being extended throughout the Slope country. The figures of the amount of butterfat marketed from some of the Slope counties through cream stations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, as made public by Mr. W. F. Reynolds, state dairy commissioner, on Saturday, indicate that the Slope is keeping well to the front in this branch of farming.

Morton County ranks as the banner county of the State in this respect but the other Slope counties are either well to the front or making marked progress.

The farmers "out where the West begins" are going forward with the work of meeting changed conditions, just as are the farmers elsewhere in the State. In some respects the Slope farmers probably are in the lead of the farmers in other sections.

But the proof continues to come in that the North Dakota farmer is firmly convinced that to place agriculture on a sound basis he must get away from the one crop idea. Fargo Forum

The Tangle

I expect, little Marquise, that most women would have been consumed with curiosity about what that advice was Syd had given Jack which would have saved him a lot of trouble before and after we were married. I never referred to it.

I have always felt I had no right to inquire into John's life and affairs before our marriage even if those affairs precipitated some consequences that might in some way change the complexion of our married life. I wonder if I am wrong!

Were you curious, little Marquise, were you jealous? Is it a sign of love or vanity that makes one person jealous of another? It had always seemed to me that it was a sign of an inferiority, a confession that one believed the person of whom one was jealous cleverer or more beautiful than one's self. Of course a curiosity about John's actions before he knew me would not argue superiority or inferiority on my part and I was quite sure that since our marriage, whatever faults John may have shown, he had never had the slightest interest in any other woman.

"I want you to look your prettiest," he continued quickly, after making that break about taking Syd's advice. "You are looking a little pale lately, honey. Why don't you use some of that new rouge the girl gave me all wearing nowadays?" I laughed outright, little Marquise, at the idea that, while I was saying to myself he never had the slightest interest in any other woman, he had been interested in all women enough to see that most of them were using rouge on their cheeks nowadays.

"What are you laughing at, dear," he said in a hurt voice.

"I couldn't tell him so I took refuge in another half question. 'Surely, Jack, you wouldn't want me to lose my sense of humor, would you?'"

"Certainly not," he asserted, his thought immediately diverting from his own question. "You know, Leslie, before we were married I rather had an idea that no woman had a sense of humor and I tell you that was one of the reasons I was afraid to ask a girl to marry me. I thought she took herself seriously all the time. That I should either knock her down weekly or be bored to death daily."

"It would probably be the latter," Jack rejoined. "I can conceive of you being bored but never being a brute."

As I said this Jack's arms were about me, his lips were pressed close to my own. Everything in the world except our mutual love had gone out of my mind. Oh, little Marquise, there are some things for which you should envy me for although your lover was a king, he was only your lover and there are times in every wife's life when a certain oneness, a certain dependency, a certain stoniness is added to the thrill of love giving it that bliss which cannot be described but which makes a heaven here on earth. To be a man's wife is much the best thing that can come to a woman after all.

"This was one of the great moments and for fear I would show too much emotion, which I knew Jack did not like, I said, 'I'll go away and dress now.'"

"Yes, do dear, I want to make old Syd envious."

Did your kindly lover ever say anything as nice as that to you? (Copyright, 1923, NEA Service, Inc.)

THE FOOL

By Channing Pollock.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Dilly Giliham, her mother, Mrs. Giliham, with Lela Thornbury, a divorcee, are the church of the Nativity, a fashionable church of New York, come in with Jerry Goodkind, a man-about-town, who is interested in Clara Jewett, engaged to the Reverend Daniel Gilchrist, the assistant rector of the church, in bad favor because of his radical sermons.

Wadhams, the rector, drops in to attend a meeting of the wardens. Charles Benfield declares that either he or Gilchrist must leave the church. Jerry proposes marriage to Clara.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"You think it's so bad at 8:45 on Christmas eve," he heard. "Well, keep your ears and your mind open, and see how you feel in the morning. My telephone's Rhineland six-nine-four-two—and this is the last time I shall ask you."

"Wait!"

He paused for Clara to proceed. "Whatever you believe of me," she continued, "I love Mr. Gilchrist."

"Rhineland six-nine-four-two," was his only comment.

CHAPTER IV

The Meeting of the Wardens

Clara Jewett stared with burning angry eyes at the door that closed upon Jerry Goodkind. It seemed as though he had paused on the other side to leer at her through the heavy oak panel. As she took a step forward, an echo announced the closing of the outer door and she turned back.

She looked down to see that her hands, doubling unconsciously in nervous tension, were crushing the tissue-wrapped packages she still held. Fuming, she hurled them at the foot of the tree where others lay, piled high, just as Dr. Wadhams came from the choir room.

"Why—Miss Jewett!" the minister protested in surprise.

She looked up, embarrassed.

"I'm nervous," she cried petulantly. "I want to finish up and go home." She rushed past him through the door he had just opened. Bewildered, the minister stopped and rearranged the disordered packages.

The noise of the outer door pre-arranged a visitor and Dr. Wadhams rose hastily and dusted himself off.

"Mr. Goodkind," he said as the senior warden came in briskly. "You're early."

George F. Goodkind, Jerry's father, carried the air of a busy office with him everywhere. Even evening clothes or the heavy overcoat and gloves he wore now, one felt that there should have been a desk in front of him and a nimble-fingered stenographer at his side with an occasional army maneuvering at his elbow.

He had Jerry's amiability, the amiability of wealth. He had Jerry's selfishness, too, but of a different source. Jerry was selfish because he had been brought up with all his wants supplied. The older Goodkind was selfish because he had fought for all he had and felt that it was his, and his alone, by right of conquest.

HERMIT STREAK

Ed Howe, veteran Kansas editor, visits New York City and says he's there for a rest. In his home town, Atchison, everybody knows him and consults him so much that it becomes a pest. In New York he is a stranger, no one bothering him.

We believe this is one reason for the big cities. People of our generation have a hermit streak. They want privacy without constant solitude. In old times, folks visited back and forth to exchange gossip rather than because they craved companionship. The newspaper has taken the place of the old-time gossiping bee.

CHANGING FASHIONS

Style makers pass the word to their customers that plaids, stripes and checks will be "the thing" in women's wear next spring. There'll be a strong play on simplicity of silhouette. Garments will run severely to straight lines.

This sounds as if the ladies will look as is they'd been tailored by carpenters. The effect will be softened by an epidemic of Chinese colors—citron, lacquer red, porcelain blue, greens and delicate corals.

The only thing that doesn't go out of fashion is father's pocketbook, which'll be as much in demand as ever before.

PLOT OF LIFE

A girl invites a quarrel by wearing a red dress. Blue soothes the young man and attracts him. Men have a peculiar instinct that makes them shy away from green. A girl wearing much jewelry conveys the impression of being a spendthrift, while brown suggests she is practical.

These and other psychological hints are given in the Y. W. C. A. course on etiquette for business girls, in Chicago.

The plot of life depends on the way it's staged. Even more so after marriage than before.

THOUGHT FASTEST THING

World's speed typewriting championship goes to Albert Pangora. He wrote 9120 words in an hour, making only 21 errors.

The average word has at least six letters, so Pangora hit the keys accurately nearly 60,000 times in an hour—or 1000 times a minute, about 17 a second. Each letter had to be carried to the eye, on to the brain, then telegraphed to the fingertips and allied muscles. Thought is the fastest thing in the universe.

PROOF OF THEORY

It develops that the rich Rockefellers are descended from Johann Peter Rockefeller, who originally lived near Newwied, on the Rhine in Germany. He came to America in 1722 and settled in New Jersey.

Eleven years later the Rockefellers had staked out 600,000 acres of land. Which proves that there is something in this theory about heredity.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

Nancy and Nick had climbed up into a buttonwood tree in Dixie Land when they noticed a big bird flying slowly round in circles over their heads.

Ech oie was a little lower than the others and pretty soon, with couple of flaps of his great wings, the bird settled on the ground at their feet.

"Good day!" he said hospitably. "What you all doing?"

"Why," answered Nick, "We're just sitting here. The Fairy Queen just came to see if everybody in Dixie Land was all right. What's your name, please?"

"I'm Mistah Turkey Buzzard!" said the big bird with a twinkle in his eye. "But down south weh we consider it polite for strangers to tell their names first."

"We're Nancy and Nick, the Twins," answered Nancy, who felt that Nick had done enough talking. "And now, Mister Turkey Buzzard, have you any troubles?"

"Not so many," answered Mister Buzzard. "But still I like a few. I wish you would tell the Fairy Queen; please to send a few more mice and hedgehog and bats down to Dixie Land. Also a few bees and wasps, rather a great many bees and wasps and hornets and yellow jackets."

"What for?" asked Nick. "What do you want all those things for?"

"To eat, of course," said Mister Turkey Buzzard. "What did you think I wanted them for? To sting me?"

"Well, I'm not going to tell the Fairy Queen that!" declared the little boy.

"Well then," said Mister Buzzard, "I'll have to take what food I can get. But there! After all, down south here, we don't usually ask favors of our guests. We try to please them. And if you don't mind, young friends, I am going to try to do something for you. I am going to save your lives. That's what I flew down here for. When I was away up in the sky, I looked down and saw you, but my sharp eyes saw something else, too. I see to myself right then, see I, Mistah Buzzard, sir, if you don't hurry down there those two children are going to get hurt, for as sure as anything, that old Cottonmouth Moccasin asleep right under their tree."

"So now, if you'll please excuse me, I'll be going. And I'll just take Cottonmouth along."

With one dive of his bent back, Mister Turkey Buzzard grabbed the little snake, the worst fellow in all Dixie Land, and flew away before the Twins could say a word to thank him.

TEAM CHEERED IN B. H. S. 'PEP' SESSION TODAY

Coach Houser, Capt. Benzer and Prof. Bubltz Make Speeches at Meeting

The Bismarck High School "Demons" were given a rousing cheer at the high school this morning in a "pep" meeting for the team which goes against Fargo High at Fargo Saturday for the championship of the southern half of the state.

Coach Houser, Capt. Benzer and Prof. Bubltz spoke and high school yells followed.

Coach Houser will take 15 men to Fargo Friday and the team expects to be in fine shape. The locals are working on new plays this week to match the Fargo team.

Probably 10 or 15 carloads of business men and students will drive to Fargo Friday night or Saturday morning for the game.

GUTHRIE UNIQUE AMONG UMPIRES

Few Arbitrators Have Color.
But Bill Has Oodles of It

BY BILLY EVANS
Umpiring is a rather colorful profession. It is the duty of the umpire to call the plays as he sees them. When the ball is delivered by the pitcher to the batsman it is either a ball or strike and the base runners are either out or safe. The work of the umpire is largely mechanical.

Rupture Not Dangerous

The Real Danger is Not from the Rupture Itself, But from the Hard Pads and the Pressure of the Spring of the Usual Style of Truss.

The Brooks Appliance Is the Only Strictly Modern and Entirely Comfortable Way of Holding a Rupture.

SENT ON FREE TRIAL

This Man Is Ruptured Yet Plays Football Safely—He Uses A BROOKS APPLIANCE

Just because you are unfortunate in being ruptured is no good reason why you should not freely engage in every form of athletic sport, dancing, skating and all amusements.

A Brooks Appliance will hold firmly yet with perfect comfort at all times and under all conditions. There are no hard pads nor springs of any kind about a Brooks Appliance. A soft, pliable rubber air cushion is so shaped as to firmly cling to the body and hold the rupture back just as you would do with the pressure of your hand.

The percentage of permanent cures that the Brooks Appliance makes is astonishingly great. Over 21,000 people—all ages, men, women and children, new cases and old—have given written testimony of cures.

A FREE TRIAL is always allowed. Do not be deceived by counterfeit and so-called "Brooks Model." Look always for the trade mark and signature of C. E. Brooks in gold upon every genuine Appliance.

The success of the Brooks is due to a secret that truss makers have never discovered, so shun imitations if you expect satisfaction.

deal, it is a position that offers few possibilities for color.

Among the men who have umpired in the major leagues for the past two score years have been many great umpires, but few real characters, men with color. Tim Hurst, Silk O'Loughlin, Bill Byron and Bill Guthrie were a few of the unusual characters who have held the indicator. Hurst and O'Loughlin have passed away, while Byron and Guthrie are back in the minors.

In an official capacity I have been identified with all four, each had his own unusual style. Tim Hurst was the master at repartee, Silk O'Loughlin was the autocrat of the diamond, no one dared doubt his statement that he never missed one in his life. Bill Byron was the stirring arbitrator. When the athletes poured tales of woe into Byron's ear he gave no heed, but sang to them little ditties intended to allay their injured feelings, but which usually stirred them up all the more.

A Unique Character

The last of the four unique umpires who have graced the majors was Bill Guthrie, who broke into the American League with me late in the fall of 1922. And believe me, Bill Guthrie is a mighty good umpire. I shall never forget Bill's opening remark when he greeted me in the dressing-room at Detroit.

"Well, Kid, here I am. I have been shooting at this league for 15 years and finally made the grade." Then a slight hesitation. "And now the big question is, how long am I going to stay here?"

In his very first game Bill chased Catcher Picinich, then playing with Washington, from the game. With the sacks loaded on the count three and two Bill sent the third strike for the final out, a curve ball that broke over the plate. Picinich protested loudly and then took his shower. The name Picinich was a tongue twister to Bill and before the start of the game he had shortened it to Spinach. He is now he explained the passing of Picinich when we got into the dressing-room.

Called Him Spinach
"What do you think of Spinach, the vegetable catcher on the Washington club? I called the third one right in the alley and he turned around and started to sing the Wash Blues."

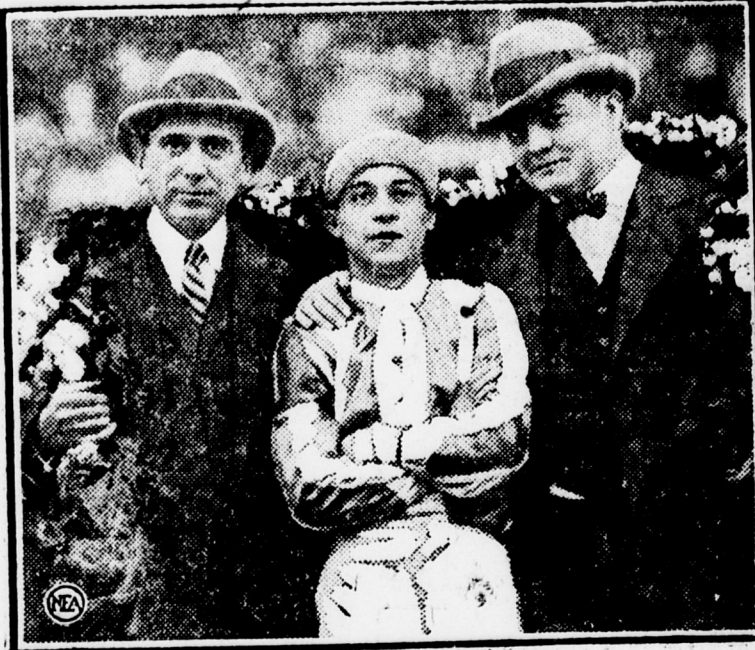

"What did you do?" I asked Bill. "I told him that everything he said to me was old stuff and unless he had a new set of words to beat it to the club house." He did.

The first time Guthrie saw the New York club he got into an argument on the very first play of the game. Whitey Witt hit a slow grounder to the infield and gave Guthrie a hair-line decision at first. Bill called him out. At Witt ran back to protest, Miller Huggins, who had been coaching at third base, also rushed over to join Witt in the chorus. Before either had a chance to say much, Guthrie shouted: "The gate for you, Witt, and you can take the bat-boy with you," said Guthrie, as he pointed at the diminutive Huggins. The sally brought forth a smile from even the irritated manager of the Yanks and he beat it with Witt, almost before the game had started.

No Close Decisions
Like O'Loughlin, Guthrie didn't take much stock in the close ones, to him the decisions were either this or that, the tiffs being accompanied with the umpire's way of motioning a runner out, and the that with the signal of safe. There were no close ones, either this or that.

During the two months Bill Guthrie worked with me he kept me constantly in good humor. He was original in every way. Any ball player who ever won an argument from Guthrie deserved it. Bill was an unusual character, one of the few that have graced the umpire profession. Had he stuck in the big show he would have earned a place with Hurst, O'Loughlin and Byron for being original. He would have furnished columns of copy.

I was mighty sorry to see him depart from the majors. He was a good umpire, even though the general belief is, that the only good umpires are the dead ones.

BILLY MISKE EASY WINNER

Omaha, Nov. 8.—Billy Miske, St. Paul heavyweight, knocked out Bill Brennan in the fourth round of their 10 round bout here last night. It was the first fight either man had participated in for several months.

Brennan did not appear to be in condition. The fighting was all at close range, both Brennan and Miske hooking with rights to the head.

After being warned by Referee Shea at the end of the second round, to display more action, Brennan rushed his St. Paul opponent and fell into a clinch. Miske hooked him with a right jab to the jaw and Brennan reeled around the ring, falling in his own corner as the gong sounded.

The fourth round was brief, Brennan still dazed, walked to the center of the ring where he was met with a right to the jaw and was counted out.

The weights were announced as Brennan 206; Miske 189.

Gaston Means, Man Who Loves Trouble

as business advisor to Mrs. Maude A. King, of North Carolina.

While out shooting one day, she was killed. Means, who was with her, was indicted for murder in the first degree.

It was a sensational trial. Colonel Thomas B. Felder, who has been kept busy getting Means out of trouble every time he got in, went from New York to North Carolina to defend him.

In a short time the jury acquitted him.

Then came a long line of new charges and indictments following the filing of a second will of Mrs. King's millionaire husband. Three million dollars were involved. Means and others would have benefitted by it, Judge Jesse Baldwin of Illinois called it a forgery.

An appeal followed, and with it came long drawn-out litigation brought to a close last month when the Supreme Court of Illinois ruled to throw out the second will.

When cleared of all charges growing out of the Mrs. King death and will contest, Means went back to his investigating work.

"Standing trial for murder is exciting enough," he says, "but it takes real sleuthing to give a real thrill." He became a special agent for the Department of Justice investigating liquor cases.

"I unearthed the society bootlegging conspiracy," Means says, "which resulted in the imprisonment of the La Montagne brothers."

And he worked on many other important cases.

But trouble seems to follow him wherever he goes.

In a short time he was indicted in the gigantic bootlegging conspiracy.

He is now out on $15,000 bail awaiting trial.

But he isn't worrying.

"I've been able to get out of so much trouble before," he says confidently, "that I'm sure I'll get out of this, too. As is usually the case, I am not guilty."

But I hate to have it interfere with my detective work, even for a short time.

He is now taking it easy, dividing his time between Colonel Felder's office and his home in Washington, D. C., where he sits down with his children and tells them, not fairly tales of idle creation, but real detective stories that make the youngsters' blood tinge.

COLONY TRAINING CENTER PLAN OF BLIND VETERANS

St. Louis, Nov. 8.—Establishment of a colony as a training center for blind former service men will be discussed at the second annual convention of the United States Blind Veterans of the World War, to be held here November 12-17.

The purpose of the colony would be to help Americans, blinded in service, realize their ambitions, according to the local arrangements committee.

Subjects to be taught would include poultry raising on a commercial scale, landscaping, gardening, typewriting, basketry, woodworking, weaving, music and civics.

It also is proposed to establish a trust fund to be used as a revolving loan fund for those desiring to engage in business.

Another subject to be considered is that of research work with a view to lightening the burdens of the blind.

Live Opportunities For You

"Opportunity knocks but once."

So said the sage. But don't you believe it. It isn't so.

Opportunity knocks every day of your life. Every advertisement in this paper is brimful of opportunity for some one. Many of them are written with you in mind. They offer you opportunities to save time, money and effort—opportunities to surround yourself with comforts and conveniences—opportunities to eat better, sleep better, dress better and live better.

You would live in ignorance of these opportunities were it not for advertising. Somebody might be selling a new, better and more economical food; or a utensil that would add immeasurably to your comfort and well-being; or some better material for making shoes or clothing—but you would never know it.

Modern advertising is a boon. It keeps information up to date on the many things we need in order to live profitable, happy and useful lives in this age of rapid-fire progress.

Every advertisement in this paper is a real opportunity.

Playing the Love Game

By MYRA CURTIS LANE

Martha McEwan tossed herself about the boarding house. She was her sister's only aid, for she was now penniless and had, and the place was packed that day. As Martha dusted in the parlor she sang, but presently two tears dropped from her eyes. She turned around to see her sister Minnie, ten years her senior, looking at her. "Don't cry, Martha," she said. "That fellow's not worth it."

She was crying on account of Harry. A week before they had known that their love was eternal, but that was before Lucy Esau had come out from the city for her holiday. Martha had known Harry a long time, and Lucy had known him two days when it became plain what was happening.

Martha grew very ill. Harry assumed a hang-dog look whenever he passed her. He was ashamed of himself, but he was infatuated with the pretty city girl.

She was only playing with him. She would go back, and then Martha would tell Harry what she thought of him. If ever he came hanging around her again, she despised him more than would have seemed possible a week before.

She went to the door, and shading her eyes from the sun, looked up the road. Yes, there they came together, back from the river, where they had been in the canoe. They were walking close together. A spasm of fierce jealousy shook the girl's heart.

"Wonder he's got the nerve," said Minnie. "I wonder he hadn't the good taste to leave anyway. He's treated you like a dog, Martha. Don't you worry about him."

The two were coming up to the house. Minnie, with a sniff of contempt, went in, but Martha stood there, torturing herself as she saw how close together they were; how Harry's hand lingered near Lucy's sleeve.

They looked up and saw her. On the girl's face was that look of triumph which only one woman can show toward another. But on Harry's face there was an expression almost of appeal.

Martha stood aside and the couple went inside. The next week she went to her duties. It was a commonplace little tragedy—every woman's tragedy. She would have to hear it.

Three days later Lucy went away. Harry did not accompany her to the station. He took his departure that afternoon, ashamed as he said good-by. He lived ten miles away. He often used to run out on Sundays. Now Martha hoped she would never see him again.

Days passed. She was beginning to get over the shock, not over the humiliation. She had never had another lover; she was a quiet girl, faithful, loyal. . . . She would never love again. And she knew that her love for Harry was absolutely dead.

She knew it most surely of all when he stood unexpectedly before her one afternoon a month later. "Well, Harry?"

"After I come in?" he asked humbly.

She led the way inside. She looked at him in gentle inquiry. "Martha," he burst out, "I know what you must think of me, but can you believe me when I tell you that I never cared for her?"

"It doesn't matter, Harry; all that is over," she answered.

"I must tell you, I couldn't resist her. It wasn't love, just fascination. She said on the day she came here, when I asked if I could go and see her, that she had never cared for me. She had been leading me on, to amuse herself. She is engaged to a rich man in the city. She has no heart at all."

"And so you thought you would come back to me?" asked Martha.

"Only because I always did care just the same. Martha, won't you—couldn't you forgive me and—take me back again?"

"Do you really want me, Harry?" she asked.

"With all my heart—even then."

And, looking at him, she knew that something had just come to birth in her; some understanding, the sense of the maternal love, so much deeper than that other, the part that a woman must play toward a man eternally—the mother.

"Very well, Harry," she answered. "But don't kiss me—not yet, Harry, dear. Next time you come. Go home now; I want to be alone."

Plaintiffs and Respondents, vs.

Loomis F. Irish and Arthur Pearson,

Defendants and Appellants.

SYLLABUS:

1. In an appeal from a judgment in an action properly tried, and tried, in the district court under Section 7246, C. L. 1913, as amended by Chapter 8, Laws 1913, the Supreme Court may not review the evidence for the purpose of determining whether the findings of the trial court are sustained by the evidence, unless the appellant has demanded a trial anew of the entire case or of some specified question or questions of fact in the Supreme Court. All questions of fact not so specified will be deemed to have been properly decided by the trial court.

A party vested with authority to exercise a power of sale in a mortgage, in doing so, is bound to exercise good faith towards the mortgagor, and his successor in interest. Hedlin v. Lee, 21 N. D. 495, 131 N. W. 390, followed.

3. While mere inadequacy of price at the foreclosure sale alone is not a sufficient ground for setting aside a sale, otherwise properly conducted, gross inadequacy of price, coupled with bad faith and unfairness in the exercise of the power of sale by the party vested with power to exercise it, with resulting undue advantage to such person and prejudice and injury to the mortgagor or his successor in interest justifies equitable relief against the sale, and the annulment of the sheriff's deed issued pursuant thereto.

From a judgment of the district court of Williams County, Moelling, J., defendants appeal.

MODIFIED AND AFFIRMED.

Germany Leads In Potatoes

Washington, Nov. 8.—Nobody knows just how many potatoes are grown in the world yearly, but the Department of Agriculture estimates more than 5,000,000,000 bushels were harvested last year, exclusive of Russia and the many small patches grown in gardens for home use the world over.

Northwestern Europe is the world's greatest potato producing region because of favorable soil and climatic conditions and its people utilize the potato to a greater extent in their diet, in the manufacture of alcohol, and as feed for livestock than in other sections of the world. Germany is the world's largest producer of potatoes producing 1,494,181,000 bushels last year. The United States produced 451,185,000 bushels last year.

Capt. Houser, Capt. Benzer and Prof. Bubnitz spoke and high school yells followed.

Capt. Houser will take 15 men to Fargo Friday and the team expects to be in fine shape. The locals are working on new plays this week to match the Fargo team.

Probably 40 or 50 loads of business men and students will drive to Fargo Friday night or Saturday morning for the game.

GUTHRIE UNIQUE AMONG UMPIRES

Few Arbitrators Have Color,
But Bill Has Oodles of It

BY BILLY EVANS
Umpiring is a rather colorless profession. It is the duty of the umpire to call the plays as he sees them. When the ball is delivered by the pitcher to the batsman it is either a ball or strike and the base runners are either out or safe. The work of the umpire is largely mechanical.

ical, it is a position that offers few possibilities for color.

Among the men who have umpired in the major leagues for the past two-score years have been many great umpires, but few real character men with color. Tim Hurst, Silk O'Loughlin, Bill Byron and Bill Guthrie were a few of the unusual characters who have held the indicator. Hurst and O'Loughlin have passed away, while Byron and Guthrie are back in the minors.

In an official capacity I have been identified with all four, each has his own unusual style. Tim Hurst was the master at repartee, Silk O'Loughlin was the autocrat of the diamond, no one dared doubt his statement that he never missed one in his life. Bill Byron was the singing arbitrator. When the athletes poured tales of woe into Byron's ear he gave no heed, but sang to them little ditties intended to allay their injured feelings, but which usually stirred them up all the more.

A Unique Character

The last of the four unique umpires who have graced the majors was Bill Guthrie, who broke into the American League with me late in the fall of 1922. And believe me, Bill Guthrie is a mighty good umpire. I shall never forget Bill's opening remark when he greeted me in the dressing-room at Detroit: "Well, Kid, here I am. I have been shooting at this league for 15 years and finally made the grade." Then a slight hesitation. "And now the big question is, how long am I going to stay here?"

In his very first game Bill chased Catcher Picinich, then playing with Washington, from the game. With the sacks loaded on the count three and two Bill called the third strike for the final out, a curve ball that broke over the plate. Picinich protested loudly and then took his shower. The name Picinich was a tongue twister to Bill and before the start of the game he had shortened it to Spinach. Here is how he explained the passing of Picinich when we got into the dressing-room.

Called Him Spinach
"What do you think of Spinach, the vegetable catcher on the Washington club? I called the third one right in the alley and he turned around and started to sing the Wash Blues."

"What did you do?" I asked Bill. "I told him that everything he said to me was old stuff and unless he had a new set of words to beat it to the club house," he did.

The first time Guthrie saw the New York club he got into an argument on the very first play of the game. Whitey Witt hit a slow grounder to the infield and gave Guthrie a hair-line decision at first. Bill called him out. At Witt ran back to protest. Miller Huggins, who had been coaching at third base, also rushed over to join Witt in the chorus. Before either had a chance to say much, Guthrie shouted: "The gate for you, Witt, and you can take the bat-boy with you," said Guthrie, as he pointed at the dimming Huggins. The rally brought forth a smile from even the irritated manager of the Yanks and he beat it with Witt, almost before the game had started.

No Close Decisions
Like O'Loughlin, Guthrie didn't take much stock in the close ones, or that the life being accompanied with the umpire's way of motioning a runner out, and the that with the signal of safe. There were no close ones, either this or that.

During the two months Bill Guthrie worked with me he kept me constantly in good humor. He was original in every way. Any ball player who ever won an argument from Guthrie deserved it. Bill was an unusual character, one of the few that have graced the umpire profession. Had he stuck in the biz show he would have earned a place with Hurst, O'Loughlin and Byron for being original. He would have furnished columns of copy.

I was mighty sorry to see him de-

This trio has cause to rejoice. They are, left to right: R. J. Gilmore, trainer of In Memoriam; Jockey Mack Garner, who rode the mount to victory over Zev and My Own, and Carl Wiedemann, owner of the horse.

BILLY MISKE EASY WINNER

Omaha, Nov. 8.—Billy Miske, St. Paul heavyweight, knocked out Bill Brennan in the fourth round of their 10 round bout here last night. It was the first fight either man had participated in for several months.

Brennan did not appear to be in condition. The fighting was all at close range, both Brennan and Miske hooking with rights to the head.

After being warned by Referee Shea at the end of the second round, to display more action, Brennan rushed his St. Paul opponent and with a right jab to the jaw and Brennan reeled around the ring, falling in his own corner as the gong sounded.

The fourth round was brief, Brennan still dazed, walked to the center of the ring where he was met with a right to the jaw and was counted out.

The weights were announced as Brennan 206; Miske 189.

Gaston Means, Man Who Loves Trouble

as business advisor to Mrs. Maude A. King, of North Carolina. While out shooting one day, she was killed. Means, who was with her, was indicted for murder in the first degree.

It was a sensational trial. Colonel Thomas B. Felder, who has been kept busy getting Means out of trouble every time he got in, went from New York to North Carolina to defend him.

In a short time the jury acquitted him.

Then came a long line of new charges and indictments following the filing of a second will of Mrs. King's millionaire husband. Three million dollars were involved. Means and others would have benefitted by it. Judge Jesse Baldwin of Illinois called it a forgery.

An appeal followed, and with it came long drawn-out litigation brought to a close last month when the Supreme Court of Illinois ruled to throw out the second will.

When cleared of all charges growing out of the Mrs. King death and will contest, Means went back to his investigating work.

"Standing trial for murder is at citing enough," he says, "but it takes real sleuthing to give a real thrill." He became a special agent for the Department of Justice investigating liquor cases.

"I unearthed the society bootlegging conspiracy," Means says, "which resulted in the imprisonment of the La Montagne brothers."

And he worked on many other important cases.

But trouble seems to follow him wherever he goes.

In a short time he was indicted in the gigantic bootlegging conspiracy.

He is now out on $15,000 bail awaiting trial.

But he isn't worrying.

"I've been able to get out of so much trouble before," he says confidently, "that I'm sure I'll get out of this, too. As is usually the case, I am not guilty."

"But I hate to have it interfere with my detective work, even for a short time."

He is now taking it easy, dividing his time between Colonel Felder's office and his home in Washington, D. C., where he sits down with his children and tells them, not fairy tales of idle creation, but real detective stories that make the youngsters' blood tingle.

COLONY TRAINING CENTER PLAN OF BLIND VETERANS

St. Louis, Nov. 8.—Establishment of a colony as a training center for blind former service men will be discussed at the second annual convention of the United States Blind Veterans of the World War, to be held here November 12-17.

The purpose of the colony would be to help Americans, blinded in service, realize their ambitions, according to the local arrangements committee.

Subjects to be taught would include poultry raising on a commercial scale, landscaping, gardening, typewriting, basketry, woodworking, weaving, music and civics.

It also is proposed to establish a trust fund to be used as a revolving loan fund for those desiring to engage in business.

Another subject to be considered is that of research work with a view to lightening the burdens of the blind.

Live Opportunities For You

"Opportunity knocks but once."

So said the sage. But don't you believe it. It isn't so.

Opportunity knocks every day of your life. Every advertisement in this paper is brimful of opportunity for some one. Many of them are written with you in mind. They offer you opportunities to save time, money and effort—opportunities to surround yourself with comforts and conveniences—opportunities to eat better, sleep better, dress better and live better.

You would live in ignorance of these opportunities were it not for advertising. Somebody might be selling a new, better and more economical food; or a utensil that would add immeasurably to your comfort and well-being; or some better material for making shoes or clothing—but you would never know it.

Modern advertising is a boon. It keeps information up to date on the many things we need in order to live profitable, happy and useful lives in this age of rapid-fire progress.

Every advertisement in this paper is a real opportunity.
